

Probers May Put Their Spotlight On Disc Jockeys

Hint Show Business Investigation Will Cover Song Plugging Field

Washington — (AP) — A House subcommittee is ready to sweep its searchlight from the tainted world of TV quiz shows to another phase of show business—disc jockeys and song pluggers.

Charges of skulduggery and bribery in promotion of records, particularly on disc jockey shows on TV and radio, have been received by the house legislative oversight subcommittee.

Extend Inquiry

"Certain charges have been made to the subcommittee and we shall look into them," subcommittee Chief Counsel Robert W. Lishman told a reporter last night.

He refused to say whether this is one of the things subcommittee Chairman Oren Harris (D-Ark) had in mind yesterday when he announced the inquiry will be extended into other television practices.

However, one report — so far unconfirmed — had it that disc jockeys and sales promotion of popular music records will be the chief target of the new inquiry. Lishman confirmed that, among other things, subcommittee investigators plan to look into allegations of bribing of disc jockeys to promote new popular records.

The subcommittee also is expected to take a penetrating look at TV and radio advertising commercials and at the practice of undercover cash payments for plugs of persons or products on TV shows.

Final Witness

Harris said the subcommittee will meet again Dec. 9 to plot its future activities.

The final witness yesterday, CBS President Frank Stanton, said, "We believe that legislation is no cure-all for these ills and that the primary responsibility lies with the broadcasting industry itself."

15 Killed in Plane Crash

Big U. S. Transport Plunges to Earth In Southern Formosa

Taipei, Formosa — (AP) — A U.S. air force plane crashed in southern Formosa today killing all 15 persons aboard.

The U.S. air force C-47 carried 11 passengers and 4 crewmen. All were air force personnel except one, the air force announcement said.

The plane was en route to Clark air force base in the Philippines.

It crashed in an open field near Tainan, site of the big Nationalist China air force base which the U.S. air force also uses.

Witnesses said the plane appeared to develop engine trouble right after taking off from Tainan and plunged before it could return to the field.

Names of the victims were withheld pending notification of kin.

Truman Article Discusses Atom Bomb Testing

The world debates a momentous question: Should nations agree to cease nuclear bomb testing permanently? Political reputations—and perhaps the fate of mankind—ride on the issue.

Now former President Harry S. Truman, the man who made the decision to drop the first atomic bomb on Hiroshima, states his position.

The former president outlines his views on the atom issue and discusses the possibility of "accidental" war.

Uphold Injunction Sending Steel Workers Back to Jobs

Supreme Court Votes 8 to 1 That T-H Section Does Not Violate U. S. Constitution

Washington — (AP) — The supreme court today upheld an injunction ordering striking steel workers back to the mills.

The ruling means the 500,000 steelworkers must return to their jobs for an 80-day "cooling off" under emergency provisions of the Taft-Hartley act.

The ruling came on the 116th day of the strike.

The court action makes the 80-day cooling off period effective immediately—beginning this morning.

The high tribunal's action was announced in a 5-page unsigned opinion handed to newsmen in the court's press room shortly after 9 a. m. EST—a highly unusual hour for announcement of any court action.

Justice William O. Douglas wrote a 14-page dissenting opinion.

The court's vote, thus was 8-1.

Majority Opinion

The majority opinion said the cooling off provision of the Taft-Hartley law as applied here is not violative of the constitutional limitation prohibiting courts from exercising powers of a legislative or executive nature, powers not capable of being conferred upon a court exercising solely "the judicial power of the United States."

The opinion noted that the union contended that the Taft-Hartley section involved was constitutionally invalid because it did not set up a standard of lawful or unlawful conduct "on the part of labor or management."

It then added: "But the statute does recognize certain rights in the public to have unimpeded for a time production in industries vital to the national health or safety. It makes the United States the guardian of these rights in litigation."

The majority opinion said that the court had concluded that a Taft-Hartley "entrusts the courts only with the determination of a case or controversy, on which the judicial power, can operate, not containing any element capable of only legislative or executive determination."

Uphold Findings

"We do not find that the termination of the injunction after a specified time, or the machinery established in an attempt to obtain a peaceful settlement of the underlying dispute during the injunction's pendency, detracts from this conclusion."

At another point in the opinion the majority said they thought the judgment of the lower courts in upholding the injunction to stop the strike for 80 days is "amply supported on the grounds that the strike imperils the national safety."

The court said that in making this finding, it was relying upon evidence of the effect of the strike on specific defense projects.

Launch Biggest Ship For Great Lakes Use

Detroit — (AP) — The largest ship ever built for Great Lakes service—the 730-foot Arthur B. Homer—was to be launched today at the Great Lakes Engineering Works on the Rouge river.

The ore-carrying Homer, with a hull 39 feet deep, will have a capacity of 25,000 tons of iron ore and a speed of 16½ miles an hour.

Tell Teachers To Prevent Discrimination

State Educators Hear Member of Human Rights Group

Milwaukee — (AP) — Wisconsin teachers were told Friday that they could do more than anyone else to prevent racial discrimination in the hiring of teachers.

Lloyd Barbee, Madison, a member of the governor's commission on human rights said at a sectional meeting of the Wisconsin Education association convention that some school administrators used the excuse that "other teachers wouldn't like it" in refusing to hire qualified Negroes. This attitude could be overcome, he said, if teachers themselves reassured the administration.

About 30 sectional meetings were held Friday. The convention, which ends today, has drawn about 18,000 Wisconsin teachers.

How to Laugh

Brooks Hays of Little Rock, Ark., a former congressman from that state, told the teachers that they can help ease tension in sections of the nation. He said that they must teach children they are part of a world community and not just a local community. Hays also said that the schools of the nation had failed to grasp the importance of the migration of people. This migration has an impact on schools and strengthens the case for federal aid to education.

Prof. David C. Duavis of the University of Wisconsin, said at a meeting of school librarians that America has forgotten how to laugh.

Drillery, he said, should be a part of "small table talk" or conversation at the luncheon counter, is gone because everyone is afraid of knocking that blue chip off someone's shoulder.

The WEA's library section elected Georgiane Koenings, Cedarburg, president to succeed Fern Aberg, Muskego. Gloria Anderson, Monona Grove, Madison, was elected vice president.

U. S. Air Force Joins Hunt for Cuban Official

Miami, Fla. — (AP) — A search for Maj. Camilo Cienfuegos, missing Cuban army commander, was started by U. S. air force and civil air patrol planes today over the vast Florida Everglades.

Orders to search for the Cessna twin-engine plane in which Cienfuegos disappeared Oct. 28 with a pilot and one soldier came from the 14th air force search and rescue division at Macomb, Ga.

There was no immediate report on where the request for the hunt originated, but there was speculation that it might have been made by Cuban Premier Fidel Castro.

Armed Might Played Down In Giant Red Holiday Parade

Mark Communist Revolution With Shortest Military Display Ever

Moscow — (AP) — Moscow today celebrated the 42nd anniversary of the communist revolution in Russia in a festive mood with the shortest military parade ever staged for the big holiday.

"The word 'peace' is evident everywhere both in speech and signs throughout the Soviet Union," said Moscow radio as three days of merrymaking got underway.

In the keynote address at a Red Square rally, Defense Minister Marshal Rodion Malinovsky praised Premier Nikita Khrushchev's world disarmament proposals to the United Nations.

State of Preparedness

But he also said that the Soviet Union will maintain a state of high military preparedness until the proposals are accepted and all U. S. foreign bases are liquidated.

The 20-minute military parade contained nothing spectacularly new in equipment, according to western military attaches. One said there were some "refinements" of what he had seen before.

The civilian demonstration that followed included a display of miniature sports cars. This was the first time such cars had ever appeared in a Red Square parade.

Thousands of athletes and other civilian groups participating in the parade cheered Khrushchev and other government and party leaders atop the mammoth mausoleum.

Model of Lunik

There also was plenty of evidence of Russia's recent scientific advances. A model of Lunik III, which transmitted the first pictures of the hidden side of the moon, hung over Sverdlovsk Square. Huge photographs and models of other Russian space vehicles were placed in prominent spots in other sections of the city.

May Take Six Weeks For Steel Mills to Approach Capacity

Pittsburgh — (AP) — The Taft-Hartley injunction against the steel strike offers no magic formula for speeding mills into peak production or hurrying the half-million strikers back to work.

Steel producers estimate it will take them up to six weeks to get production back to 90 per cent of capacity. They figure it will take up to three weeks to get new steel rolling in an important way.

Some of the workers may remain idle until the mills are once more humming at near capacity rates. Many of those who are recalled quickly will wait a month or more before drawing their first pay.

Council Asks Bigger State Highway Patrol

Madison — (AP) — The Wisconsin Council of Safety called today for an increase in the size of the state's traffic patrol.

The council made public a letter it sent to legislators urging action to add to the force. The council did not suggest a numerical increase but used the word "moderate."

A council prepared chart declaring three years noted a decline in traffic deaths and an increase in violation arrests and said adequate enforcement is a key to highway travel.

4 Boys Rob Bank; Give Money Back

Kranzburg, S. D. — (AP) — Four high school boys, on a holiday from classes while their teachers attended a convention, interrupted a rabbit hunt yesterday to rob a bank of $1,500.

Thinking it over, they returned to the scene of the holdup 10 minutes later, gave the money back and waited for a deputy sheriff to arrest them. None had a prior record.

State's Atty. Dean Sumner of Codington county said the robbery started off as a prank, but turned serious when one of two 16-year-olds "decided to go ahead with it on the spur of the moment."

The boy entered the Farmers State bank in this northeastern South Dakota hamlet with a white handkerchief over his face and carrying a .22 calibre rifle. Another, 13, stood in the lobby, his face covered by a stocking cap.

The rifleman ordered bank President A. J. Turbak, 60, to "give me some money."

Sumner said the boys told him three of them convinced the one who held up Turbak to return the money.

'Help From God' Cancer-Doomed Man Now Apparently Well

Bremerton, Wash. — (AP) — Joseph W. Mayerle says he feels great.

He looks robust, too. But only a few months ago doctors had given him only a short time to live. He had cancer, physicians said, but that didn't stop Mayerle.

"I ate good, got lots of fresh air and sun," he says. There was some "real help from God," he added.

Medics Puzzled

The case of the 37-year-old World War navy veteran puzzled physicians here. A veterans' hospital spokesman says there have been only 40 known similar cases.

Seven months ago Mayerle was sent home, believed doomed by lung cancer. He was given up as a hopeless case—"We figured he would die within a few weeks," a physician said.

Examination had shown his left lung "just a blur on the film."

He went home to spend his "last days" with his wife Betty and two daughters. He weighed 128.

He decided to eat heavily because he had heard cancer victims "really starve to death." He reached 158 pounds.

"Seen a Ghost"

He returned to the veterans' hospital a few weeks ago. Doctors "acted like they'd seen a ghost," he said.

Checks and rechecks of the original diagnosis and X-rays and slides were made to see if there had been a faulty diagnosis or mistaken identification. Fingerprints matched.

But there has been no explanation of his apparent recovery, he says.

Joseph W. Mayerle of Bremerton, Wash., plays with his 3-week-old son, Joe, Jr., whom doctors had predicted Mayerle would never live to see. Doctors discovered Mayerle had lung cancer last April. It was so bad they gave him less than a month to live. Now, to the amazement of physicians, Mayerle has gained 30 pounds and doctors can't find a trace of cancer. Posing with their "happy dad" are, from the left, Wanda, 13, wife Betty and Denise, 9.

Continue A-Bomb Tests Underground, Truman Advises

Stoppage Would Keep America From Advancing in Atom Science

BY HARRY S. TRUMAN

I do not think it makes any sense to continue our self-imposed ban on all nuclear tests, and we ought to lift it immediately.

Let us stop deluding ourselves with the hope that this sacrifice will persuade the Kremlin to agree to foolproof international nuclear control and disarmament. If we allow ourselves to drift into a position where we fall behind in scientific nuclear development we would compromise our security and possibly jeopardize the peace.

I do not like to think of nuclear testing in terms of military application only and, of course, I would prefer that we concentrate all of our effort on the peaceful development of the greatest potential source of energy so far discovered by man. But as there is open international lawlessness in the making of weapons, then we have an obligation to keep ourselves militarily strong.

Scientists have found that important nuclear tests can be staged and controlled underground with all the fallout sealed in. Whatever risks of further contamination of the atmosphere from fallout there

Harry Ignores Political Polls

"I was surprised to find that public opinion polls seemed to have attained such political respectability in Britain before the recent general elections. But I was not surprised at the rebuke administered by the voters to the pollsters," Truman says. "I have felt for a long time that political polls have injected an unhealthy element into free elections and were being used to some degree to influence political trends. In my own case, long before the 1948 campaign, I knew the political pollsters could not get at the true state of mind of the electorate. I have observed that many people properly resent the intrusion upon their political privacy by outsiders.

"They either refuse to divulge what is really in their minds or purposely mislead their questioners. I would suggest that the current crop of pre-convention polls only add to political confusion and constitute a doubtful criteria of how the public will vote a year from now."

may be from tests in the open, there seems to be no longer any valid reasons for stopping experiments underground.

Asks Assurances

I am informed by scientists that underground nuclear explosions are not always detectable and may be mistaken for earthquakes. That is all the more reason why we should not handicap ourselves unilaterally at this time. We have to have more verifiable assurance than mere declarations by the communists of what they are doing and what they intend to do.

That is why we ought to resume making underground tests without any further delay.

I regard as a constructive approach to international cooperation the recent suggestion of British Foreign Sec. Selwyn Lloyd that the United States, Britain and the Soviet Union hold a joint series of underground nuclear tests.

I do not see why France ought not be invited to take part in such joint ventures. From all indications, France is about to take her place as a nuclear power and I think that this is all to the good. I, for one, am glad to see that a nation that has been for so long so valiant a champion of freedom can become a stronger ally for peace. We ought to be pleased that France is reaping the fruits of the invaluable contributions her scientists have made to nuclear research.

Continue Progress

We all would be pleasantly surprised if the Soviet Union ever accepted such a proposal. I see no reason why our policy should be decided on assumptions or expectations of what the Soviet Union will eventually agree to do. Let us not be lulled into holding up our own progress at this critical phase of international trends.

I cannot forget easily that we lost a decade in which we might have concentrated entirely on the peaceful use of the atom instead of diverting the creative efforts of men to the making of terrible weapons. The Soviet Union is responsible for this lost decade. Because, at a time when we had the exclusive possession of the atomic weapon, I thought that in keeping with the needs of mankind, the United States should propose to internationalize control and possession of nuclear production.

U. S. Offer Unheeded

And we did offer officially to place the means of production within the jurisdiction of the United Nations. Under this proposal the making of atomic weapons would have stopped and the world could have devoted its energies to the peaceful development of the atom.

I keep bringing up these facts to remind some statesmen and those people who are now so alarmed about the danger of fallout that none of this would be disturbing us if the Soviet Union had not brutally rejected this extraordinary offer by the one government which had complete control at the time.

We who had the bomb, the know-how and the facilities were willing to submit to the necessary international inspection. But the Kremlin, intent on its program of world domination, would not agree to inspection and thus destroyed a great opportunity for international cooperation and peace.

There Is No Choice

Today, since other nations are in a position to make nuclear tests at will, we have no choice but to continue our experiments. Let us not be maneuvered into a false position by propaganda that attempts to picture us as a weapon-conscious and military-minded people. There is no need to appease these false accusers by depriving ourselves of the necessary experiments in the nuclear field so that we can expand our knowledge.

You can never freeze a discovery. You must go on experimenting. There can be no improvement without continuous experiments and tests. We know that from what we see and have today in our everyday life. It was not too long ago that Edison produced the first electric light bulb and a great many of us still remember the first automobile. And look at what we have already achieved in the field of nuclear science. We must never discourage the pursuit of science in its quest for knowledge.

The problems of expanding, harnessing and controlling nuclear energy pose vast difficulties and entail certain dangers. But how are we going to get the answers to many questions unless we allow our scientists full sway to experiment?

Now that we can continue such experiments underground without damage to the atmosphere we should get on with it. I hope that we can do this cooperatively with other nations.

Assembly Votes to Override Nelson on Highway Detours

Madison — The assembly voted 84 to 10 Thursday to upset Gov. Gaylord Nelson's veto of a bill to require state maintenance of highway detours.

The assembly bill, which drew only one dissenting vote in each house in the spring session, now goes to the senate. A two-thirds vote in both houses is required to override a veto.

Nelson vetoed the measure on grounds the highway commission had a policy of maintaining detours, many of them town roads, used to bypass construction zones. It also applies to city or village streets.

William Ward, New Richmond Democrat, said the commission adopted the new policy May 30, in an effort to head off the bill's passage, and could rescind it at any time. A handful of city lawmakers voted to uphold the governor.

The assembly also voted to override a Nelson veto of an assembly bill which would permit persons charged with state traffic law violations to enter pleas by mail.

Under present law the bill's supporters contended, persons pleading innocent are required to go to court to enter the plea, then a second time to stand trial.

Nelson's veto of a bill which would tighten a law requiring adjournment, while the Legislature is in session, of a court case in which a lawyer or principal is a legislator was upheld. The vote was 8-81.

Stockpile Readied

There were other A-bombs in the course of production in varying stages of completion awaiting the results of how the first bombs worked. Soon we had a substantial reserve of A-bombs in our stockpile.

I also have been asked whether it would be possible for any nuclear bomb to set off as a result of false alarm that the enemy had attacked us, or by some irresponsible person.

I can make the categorical statement that no nuclear bomb can be triggered by any one person regardless of rank without the expressed and personal order of the president of the United States.

Need Promise

No one person is ever in a position to put together a nuclear bomb without involving a group of men who are required for this purpose. The precautions taken are fully adequate against any rash act.

I cannot, of course, be sure of the circumstances surrounding the steps necessary under a totalitarian government. If some dictator should become involved in circumstances which might threaten his personal rule, there is no way of knowing whether or not he might not resort to a nuclear bomb.

We would all feel a lot better if there were some assurance that the world would never be subjected to such a madness. That is why we ought to control international use of all such weapons to assure the nations that no rash act by a dictator could plunge the world into disaster.

Nelson Wants to Alter Measure on Eminent Domain

Madison — Gov. Gaylord Nelson asked Friday that an approved bill revamping Wisconsin's eminent domain law be withdrawn from the legislative process to permit introduction of several amendments.

The bill sets up new procedures for acquiring private property for public use and a more liberal concept of just compensation for highway right-of-ways.

Nelson said the amendments had been suggested by a committee of attorneys he named to review the legislation. Passage of the amendments, Nelson said the committee related, would minimize confusion that could arise with passage of the proposal in its present form.

Nelson said the amendments would preserve the state's limited access program, clarify the rights of property owners, and give a clearer explanation of procedures affecting the rights of all parties involved in condemnation suits.

Couple Seeks To Adopt Unborn English Child

Seattle — A Kent Wash., barber and his wife, childless in 11 years of marriage, say they want to adopt the unborn child of Mrs. Shelia Winkley of Timperley, England.

Mrs. Winkley has said she does not want the child because, among other reasons, she does not like to wash diapers.

"We will wash diapers day and night to have that baby," Mrs. Gottfried Pekema, 39, said Thursday. Her 38-year-old husband echoed her sentiments.

"We have a nice home with two bedrooms," he said. "We can give the baby good care."

Pekema said, however, that his salary as a barber would prohibit his going to Britain to get the baby.

"Do you suppose they could send it to us?" Mrs. Pekema asked.

The couple said a wire has been sent to Mrs. Winkley, asking for the baby, which is expected in February.

Individual Income Surtax Ineligible for Further Use

Legislatures in Difficulty Used This Tax as an 'Ace in the Hole'

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Madison — A curious and meaningful aspect of the tax outlook discussions in the Wisconsin state capitol today is the tacit agreement that the old stand-by of legislative politicians, the individual income surtax, is ineligible for further use.

Repeatedly for more than 40 years legislatures and governors in financial difficulty have used the surtax as "ace in the hole" to extricate themselves.

Today the state faces the most serious budget deficit since the 1930's, but the word has not yet been heard in the new legislative session. It is perhaps the most positive sign of a disposition to modify traditional practices in state tax policy.

Surtax Popular

There was a time when the surtax was popular enough, in the estimate of politicians, to induce them to propose it for its own sake. It was a kind of signal for "soak the rich" in political attitude.

It was a favorite of the La Follette regimes in earlier decades of state history. The only other Democratic administration of this state in this century, in 1933 and 1934, relied upon it heavily. Subsequent Republican administrations turned to it when they had budget balancing problems.

This year the legislature added a small five per cent when it reenacted the 20 per cent surtax inherited from the Thomson regime of two years earlier.

No Increase

But not since that time has there been any talk about increasing the rate of the levy, in spite of the fact that new tax revenue legislation is surely on the way in some form. Gov. Nelson, leading a party that once leaned heavily upon the idea of upper bracket taxation, has been studiously silent on the question. Nobody in the legislature has yet made any proposal for increasing the rate of exaction of the formerly favorite method.

The reasons are fairly apparent. There is a growing realization not only that boosting upper bracket levies will be competitively dangerous for the state, because other states have lower effective income tax rates, but also that the amount of money prospectively needed will require more levies from the medium and lower bracket earners.

Tax Revision

The high-powered revenue sources survey commission, which will recommend total tax revision to the governor and the legislature sometime next year, has already flatly concluded that "not even confiscatory taxes at upper income levels" will be adequate for the state and local financing requirements.

A commission staff report prepared by a panel of University of Wisconsin economists put the story in another way. About half of the total taxable income in Wisconsin is in the first two $1,000 of individual income brackets, it was found. Any major rate structure revision designed to increase public revenues substantially must involve those brackets, it was noted.

"To attempt to get from the top income bracket — over $14,000 — the amount of revenue produced by a 1 percent age point rate increase in the first two brackets would necessitate a top bracket rate more than double the present 10.2 per cent," the technicians observed.

Presumably a "confiscatory" level would be below that rate, in view of the simultaneous exactions of the federal government's tax on incomes.

Technique Old

The surtax technique is almost as old as the state income tax itself, which was a pioneering enactment among the states of the country. The idea of taxing incomes started here in 1911. The first surtax (a tax on the income tax and this accentuating the progressivity in rates of the former) came in 1913 for the financing of a World War I soldier bonus.

In more than half of the years since that time some kind of a surtax has been in effect under state law, usually attached to a popular or politically palatable purpose. The rate rose to 100 per cent during the early years of the depression of the 1930's, continued at 60 per cent at the time of World War II, was gradually reduced and finally repealed as tax dollars tumbled into the state treasury under the impact of a war economy. The surtax was revived in 1949.

246-609 Pace Business Loop

Kaukauna — John Diedrich slammed a 246 singleton and Jack Gerend posted a 609 series to share honors in the Businessmen's Bowling loop at the Bowling bar.

Team honors went to Sherwood Wreckers with a 824 game and a 2,495 series. Sherwood won three from Royal to hold the league lead with a 19-5 record while Van Daalwyk's moved into second with a 17-7 record. Royal dropped to fourth place.

Other high scores included a 229 game by Gerend and a 594 series by Diedrich.

City Dump Closed to Hunting After Mishap

Kaukauna — Police have warned no hunting or trespassing signs have been erected at the city dump, located in the Town of Buchanan, and officers have been instructed to enforce the new regulations.

Closing of the dump to firearms is a result of an injury recently to a Kaukauna youth. It has been common practice for youngsters of the area to shoot rats at the dump.

Doesn't everything come out in the wash?

YOUR HARD WATER leaves soap scum in washed clothes.

SOFT WATER can't form soap scum. Clothes wash whiter, cleaner, fluffier!

Born To Die
Christ was born to die — for you, for me. He ... made himself of no reputation, and took upon him the form of a servant, and was made in the likeness of men. And being found in fashion as a man, he humbled himself, and became obedient unto death, even the death of the cross" (Philippians 2:7,8)

The POWER of FAITH

by Howard Brodie

The Faith of Toyohiko Kagawa brought him from the slums into the presence of the Emperor.

Japan's outstanding exponent of Christianity was converted when he was a teenager, and strengthened by spirit, was able to overcome tuberculosis. Convinced that Christianity "is a religion of love," he moved to the slums, where he counseled, aided, and preached.

A pacifist who believed that problems could best be solved by the laborer's "inner awakening" and that production should be "motivated by love," he was several times arrested for his activities. He stopped a strikers' march by standing in their path and praying, and in 1931 flew to Shanghai to ask Chinese forgiveness for his countrymen's aggression. He was jailed upon his return.

Forever zealous in his social crusade, he established schools, nurseries, a widow's home, a home for ex-convicts, orphanages, a leprosarium, medical and Christian centers, and wrote over 100 books.

After the war, the Emperor sought his advice. Carrying a Bible into the Imperial Palace, he said, "Only by service to others can a man, or a nation, be god-like." Since then, he has converted over 200,000 to Christianity.

Although his eyesight is failing from trachoma, Kagawa is still active. "My eyesight," he says, "is inside."

A Floor Conditioner that's especially equipped to care for all types of floors is called the Lady Kenmore floor conditioner, a multi-purpose appliance that is offered exclusively by Sears, Roebuck and company, 312 W. College avenue.

Sears, Roebuck and company have a suggestion for an ideal Christmas gift. It is a homemaker's tool that mechanizes almost all floor cleaning jobs where about 75 per cent of today's daily house cleaning tasks are centered. Called the Lady Kenmore floor conditioner, this new appliance is much more than just a polisher. For, in addition to scrubbing, waxing and polishing wood or tile floors, it will wet or dry clean carpeting and sand and refinish wood floors.

Exclusive with the Lady Kenmore are two big seven-inch brushes that polish and wax floors 17 per cent faster than the conventional six-inch brushes that are found on most floor polishers today. Another exclusive feature of this new polisher is the built-in light, excellent for observing your work in poorly lighter corners, and there are usually four such corners in every room. The new Lady Kenmore has a pair of wheels which give greater maneuverability and make the machine relatively easy to transport from room to room. Also exclusive with Lady Kenmore is the two-speed brush action: low speed for no-splash scrubbing and smooth waxing, high speed for polishing.

Attractively designed, the new Lady Kenmore multi-purpose floor conditioner is offered exclusively by Sears, Roebuck and company.

Fox Sand Spreader, shown above, is one of the 250 expected to be made this year by the Fox River Tractor company, 1020 N. Rankin street. The spreader has been in production for three years with improvements being made each season.

People don't know how they just know that winter driving is easier when roads have been properly sanded. The job of keeping roads open is no easy task—but with a Fox material spreader ready to work, unexpected storms are no problem.

Mountable on any standard dump body in only 15 minutes, they go to work fast. All controls inside the cab mean one man operation. Adjustable spreading width from 8 to 40 feet covers any road, whether narrow, back country or modern super highway. The spreader comes in different sizes with boxes from 8 feet to 12 feet.

As the winter season approaches, Fox River Tractor company has been kept busy supplying spreaders to most of the northern states. The farthest recent shipment was to Seattle, Wash., for spreading mountain roads. Fox spreaders were used all last winter on the airports in New York City, a submarine base in Connecticut and several U.S. Army air fields. A few weeks ago several were shipped to Winnipeg, Canada. At the present time the company is building a special lot of 40 Fox spreaders to fill an order from the state of New York.

"My Hammond Is My Hobby" says Mrs. R. A. Bentz, taking a lesson at the new Hammond Organ Studios of Fox Cities, 728 W. Foster street, Appleton. Mrs. Bentz is shown above with her instructor, Mrs. M. J. Fose, and her husband, Outagamie County treasurer.

So all the friends of Hammond Organ will be able to see the new studios, the Hammond Organ company will hold open house until 9 o'clock this evening and from 1 o'clock to 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon. Coffee will be served and Eldon Rollo, new Appleton manager, formerly of Green Bay, has extended an invitation to all interested persons to come in and look around.

Many models will be on display this weekend, in a variety of styles and woods and wood finishes. There will be Happy Is the Homemaker in her new gas kitchen, typified by Mrs. John Losselyong, 1631 Driscoll. Shown in the picture is Mrs. Losselyong's built-in oven-broiler and gas built-in surface units. The Tappan oven and surface units are from APCO, 507 W. College avenue.

"My new Tappan gas built-in oven and surface units are just wonderful," says Mrs. Losselyong. With a hungry family of eight to feed at even meal, a convenient and time-saving kitchen is a boon to any wife and mother.

She said that her oven is completely automatic. She can set her timer, fix meals at her convenience and forget about it. Dinner will be ready at the proper time, whether or not she is there.

The oven is chrome inside and easy to keep clean. The timer and clock are set into the wall too, which is very convenient.

Outstanding feature of the surface units, according to Mrs. Losselyong, is the ease in which they are cleaned. Even a child can take the units apart for washing—and

Health Insurance in '60 Campaign

The question of whether the federal government should provide health insurance for older people may be an important issue in the 1960 election. There is a bill pending in Congress sponsored by Rep. Aime J. Forand (D-R. I.) which proposes to add health insurance to the present Social Security program. In this form the proposal already is before Congress and the nation.

Government health insurance as suggested by the Forand bill is supported by such groups as AFL-CIO, the American Nurses association, Americans for Democratic Action, American Public Welfare association, National Consumers League and National Farmers Union.

The measure is opposed by the American Medical association, the American Dental association, the American Farm Bureau Federation, the American Hospital association, the American Nursing Home association, the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, and the Health Insurance Association of America.

If it really becomes an issue in the upcoming election, everyone will be expected to have an opinion on the proposal if he is to vote intelligently.

At recent hearings before Congressional committees, Arthur S. Flemming, secretary of health, education and welfare, expressed his belief that medical care reasonably adequate for aged persons could be provided through reliance upon individual and organized voluntary action. He said the bill was unwise because its enactment would bring a virtual halt to the efforts of private groups.

On the other hand, Nelson H. Cruikshank, Social Security director for AFL-CIO, declared that commercial insurance companies concentrate on the low risk group well below 65 years of age and charge higher rates for the higher risk old aged folks. He said the non-profit group such as the Blue Cross were forced to do the same thing in order to remain competitive. He ridiculed the Flemming statement, asking that private insurance be given more time to solve the problem.

The insurance companies are making a tremendous effort to provide health insurance through the regular insurance program. In Wisconsin, according to the Health Insurance Institute, the number of persons with health insurance increased by 86,000 last year to reach a total of 2,726,000 by the end of 1958. Nationally the number of Americans covered by the comprehensive type of major medical insurance which is the newest and fastest growing form of health insurance, has increased more than 100 times in the space of four years.

The comprehensive type of major medical insurance covered only 51,000 persons at the end of 1954. It has climbed each year since until more than 5,000,000 persons were insured at the close of 1958. The supplemental type of major medical insurance covered millions more nearing a total of 17.4 million persons with such protection when the year began. Both types of major medical insurance provide broad protection with benefits ranging as high as $10,000 to $15,000 for all areas of care provided by physicians. The primary difference between the supplemental and the comprehensive types of major medical insurance is that the supplemental type is a supplement to basic hospital, surgical and regular medical programs already in existence. The comprehensive major medical insurance combines the basic coverages and the broad protection in the single plan. The 1958 benefits paid under both types of major medical insurance totaled $238 million which was an increase of nearly 83 per cent over the previous year, the Institute reports.

If other types of health insurance are to be included, a total of 123 million persons or 70 per cent of the total civilian population were protected by health insurance as of Dec. 31, 1958.

There can be no doubt that the work of the insurance companies in providing and selling this insurance has had an important effect upon the thinking of many people interested in this subject. In the testimony before the House Ways and Means Committee shortly before the adjournment of Congress, the American Hospital association came out strongly in opposition to the Forand program or any similar approach to the problem, thus supporting the stand of the American Medical association. In addition, opponents of the bill received some encouragement from a statement by Wilbur J. Cohen to the effect that voluntary insurance had made such great strides that he no longer favored national compulsory health insurance — below the age of 65. Cohen is a professor at the University of Michigan and has been recognized by many as one of the most powerful persons in the country when it comes to developing Social Security legislation.

If the plan for compulsory health insurance — below the age 65 — is to be dropped by this powerful advocate, what about insurance above 65? The American Medical association has considered the problem and gives this answer to the question, "Would the Forand bill help our sick or indigent older citizens?" "No, most of our indigent are not covered by the Social Security system. Hence they would receive no assistance from the Forand measure. They now receive the care they need through private, fraternal and religious organizations; and welfare programs paid for by federal, state and local governments."

This is an interesting problem and one that will be argued from all sides and in all corners of the nation if it should become an issue in the election campaign. Even the most rabid advocates of compulsory health insurance base their arguments largely upon the contention that the insurance can be provided in no other way. However, the independent insurance companies have shown to the satisfaction of many people that it can be provided through private enterprise and in fact is being so provided.

Although the legislature was willing it could not provide funds to do the job. For several years pressure was exerted in congress to provide land grants — the customary means of financing such schemes. In 1845, Martin, by now Wisconsin's territorial delegate, introduced and nursed a bill through congress authorizing grants for two separate jobs, the Portage canal and the improvement of navigation on the lower Fox. The act, signed by President Polk in 1846, was to become effective upon Wisconsin's admission to the union.

Since Martin also introduced the statehood enabling act, it is difficult to know which of the two achievements he considered his greatest. Green Bay thought he did a good job both ways and on his return home he was tendered an enthusiastic banquet at the old Navarino House which spilled over into a gala ball at the rival Astor.

Start at Kaukauna

One of the first acts of Wisconsin's new legislature was to start the project, but since the constitution forbade going into debt for internal improvements the job had to be a pay as you go affair, financed by land sales. After a promising start, however, sales declined and although the Portage canal was dug work lagged so badly the state decided to call the whole thing off.

Not so Martin, who came up with a proposal to finish the job himself, the state to reimburse him through toll charges on the waterway and further land sales. A contract was approved by the 1851 legislature and Martin went to work with a crew of 500 men, starting near Kaukauna and working both ways.

New Company

In 1852, however, there was a change of administration. The new governor Leonard J. Farwell, questioned the constitutionality of the contract, refused to pay Martin state scrip owed him and vetoed a bill which would have bypassed his objections. When the measure was passed over his veto, Farwell bided his time.

The following year he proposed a bill to get the state out of the business entirely and put it in private hands. The Fox and the Wisconsin Improvement Co., was accordingly organized with Martin, Otto Tank, Joseph G. Lawton of DePere and Uriah H. Peak among the key officers and the job transferred to it.

By 1855 the series of locks and dams was well enough along to permit use by shallow draft boats and in June of 1856 the steamer Aquila, out of Pittsburgh by way of the Ohio, Mississippi and Wisconsin rivers, made the first official passage of the system.

As far as Martin and his partners were concerned the triumph was short-lived. Before the year was out the state moved in, forced them to rebuild a portion of the work, resolved a dispute over land grants in its own favor and put the whole project, together with all remaining unsold lands assigned to the company, in the hands of a hand-picked board of trustees.

Faced with unexpected costs by the reconstruction job and deprived of its main source of revenue, the company was forced to seek the aid of New York financiers. The latter knew a good thing when they saw one and once in the game outplayed the local boys badly.

Soon they had maneuvered the company into such a shaky position that the trustees were prevailed upon to sell it out from under Martin and the rest. The buyers? The New Yorkers.

Still Owns Rights

The easterners formed a corporation still known as the Green Bay and Mississippi Canal Co., which promptly unloaded on the federal government, retaining, however, water power rights which it still holds. Today the Green Bay and Mississippi Canal Co. is only a paper corporation, but every time an electric turbine generates a kilowatt of electricity along the Fox river the company gets a royalty.

The United States has maintained the waterway ever since, gradually replacing wooden locks and dams with concrete and steel structures. Today's installations between Green Bay and Lake Winnebago bear little resemblance to the originals but they are essentially the same system. By selling, the state got off the hook but the original investors were left holding the bag. Principal victim was Martin, who had poured most of his personal fortune into the undertaking and who was financially ruined by the repudiation.

Railroads Appear

In any event, the completion came too late. By the time the waterway was finished railroads were putting the skids under internal canal systems and the expectations of the builders of the Fox-Wisconsin link were never realized. The portion between Portage and Winnebago rapidly fell into disuse.

Today the old canal, while still carrying a trickle of water, is so badly choked with weeds that a rowboat would have difficulty getting through. Not so much as a skiff has tried it in years.

Advent of Railroads Hurt Project

BY JACK RUDOLPH

Post-Crescent News Service

It has been forgotten — it, indeed, many people ever knew it — but the entire eastern half of the United States is an island.

From the mouth of the St. Lawrence river, running west through the Great Lakes and up the Fox river and through the old canal at Portage, thence south through the Wisconsin and Mississippi river to the latter's entrance into the Gulf of Mexico stretches an unbroken waterway. It wasn't always there and it's merely a technicality today, but it did function as a traffic artery once.

Its existence is largely Green Bay's doing. Completion of the waterway was the work of Green Bay men, particularly Morgan L. Martin. It was Martin's greatest triumph and also his greatest tragedy. Most of the men involved lost their shirts but none was hit as badly as he, its sparkplug, whose enthusiasm, vision and labor were rewarded by financial ruin.

Dream Waterway

Completion of the Fox-Wisconsin waterway over a century ago was the fulfillment of a dream as old as the white settlement of the northwest. Ever since the early French explorers had discovered that a small boat could proceed from Quebec to New Orleans with only a short haul across the hump between the Fox and Wisconsin rivers at Portage men had talked of linking the two and, by conquering the rapids on the lower Fox, provide an uninterrupted and cheap means of transportation.

Real action began in 1825 when a few Green Bay men, led by John P. Arndt, began to study its chances realistically. In 1829 Martin, then a member of the Michigan territorial legislature, introduced a bill to charter a construction company to cut a canal, construct piers, warehouses and wharves along the route and build a turnpike parallel to it. Arndt, Martin, John Lawe, Lewis Rouse, Henry Baird and Joseph Watson were named commissioners to sell stock in the organization.

Although the legislature was willing it could not provide funds to do the job. For several years pressure was exerted in congress to provide land grants — the customary means of financing such schemes. In 1845, Martin, by now Wisconsin's territorial delegate, introduced and nursed a bill through congress authorizing grants for two separate jobs, the Portage canal and the improvement of navigation on the lower Fox. The act, signed by President Polk in 1846, was to become effective upon Wisconsin's admission to the union.

THE STORY OF THE GREEN BAY & MISSISSIPPI CANAL CO. AS RELATED BY JACK RUDOLPH

AN UNBROKEN STRETCH OF WATERWAY STARTING FROM THE MOUTH OF THE ST. LAWRENCE RIVER, RUNNING WESTWARD THROUGH THE GREAT LAKES, UP THE FOX RIVER AND THROUGH THE OLD CANAL AT PORTAGE, THEN SOUTH THROUGH THE WISCONSIN AND MISSISSIPPI RIVERS TO THE GULF OF MEXICO WAS LARGELY GREEN BAY'S DOING.

THE STEAMER AQUILA OUT OF PITTSBURGH BY WAY OF OHIO, MISSISSIPPI AND WISCONSIN RIVERS MADE THE FIRST OFFICIAL PASSAGE THROUGH THE SYSTEM

BY THE TIME THE WATERWAY WAS FINISHED RAILROADS WERE PUTTING THE SKIDS UNDER INTERNAL CANAL SYSTEMS AND THE EXPECTATIONS OF THE BUILDERS OF THE FOX-WISCONSIN LINK WERE NEVER REALIZED. THE PORTION BETWEEN PORTAGE AND WINNEBAGO RAPIDLY FELL INTO DISUSE.

TODAY THE OLD CANAL, WHILE STILL CARRYING A TRICKLE OF WATER, IS SO BADLY CHOKED WITH WEEDS THAT A ROWBOAT WOULD HAVE DIFFICULTY GETTING THROUGH. NOT SO MUCH AS A SKIFF HAS TRIED IT IN YEARS.

AS FAR AS MARTIN AND HIS PARTNERS WERE CONCERNED THE TRIUMPH WAS SHORT-LIVED. BEFORE THE YEAR WAS OUT THE STATE MOVED IN, FORCED THEM TO REBUILD A PORTION OF THE WORK, RESOLVED A DISPUTE OVER LAND GRANTS IN ITS OWN FAVOR AND PUT THE WHOLE PROJECT, TOGETHER WITH ALL REMAINING UNSOLD LANDS ASSIGNED TO THE COMPANY, IN THE HANDS OF A HAND-PICKED BOARD OF TRUSTEES.

FACED WITH UNEXPECTED COSTS BY THE RECONSTRUCTION JOB AND DEPRIVED OF ITS MAIN SOURCE OF REVENUE, THE COMPANY WAS FORCED TO SEEK THE AID OF NEW YORK FINANCIERS. THE LATTER KNEW A GOOD THING WHEN THEY SAW ONE AND ONCE IN THE GAME OUTPLAYED THE LOCAL BOYS BADLY.

SOON THEY HAD MANEUVERED THE COMPANY INTO SUCH A SHAKY POSITION THAT THE TRUSTEES WERE PREVAILED UPON TO SELL IT OUT FROM UNDER MARTIN AND THE REST. THE BUYERS? THE NEW YORKERS.

STILL OWNS RIGHTS

THE EASTERNERS FORMED A CORPORATION STILL KNOWN AS THE GREEN BAY AND MISSISSIPPI CANAL CO., WHICH PROMPTLY UNLOADED ON THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT, RETAINING, HOWEVER, WATER POWER RIGHTS WHICH IT STILL HOLDS. TODAY THE GREEN BAY AND MISSISSIPPI CANAL CO. IS ONLY A PAPER CORPORATION, BUT EVERY TIME AN ELECTRIC TURBINE GENERATES A KILOWATT OF ELECTRICITY ALONG THE FOX RIVER THE COMPANY GETS A ROYALTY.

THE UNITED STATES HAS MAINTAINED THE WATERWAY EVER SINCE, GRADUALLY REPLACING WOODEN LOCKS AND DAMS WITH CONCRETE AND STEEL STRUCTURES. TODAY'S INSTALLATIONS BETWEEN GREEN BAY AND LAKE WINNEBAGO BEAR LITTLE RESEMBLANCE TO THE ORIGINALS BUT THEY ARE ESSENTIALLY THE SAME SYSTEM. BY SELLING, THE STATE GOT OFF THE HOOK BUT THE ORIGINAL INVESTORS WERE LEFT HOLDING THE BAG. PRINCIPAL VICTIM WAS MARTIN, WHO HAD POURED MOST OF HIS PERSONAL FORTUNE INTO THE UNDERTAKING AND WHO WAS FINANCIALLY RUINED BY THE REPUDIATION.

The Prints of the Plans (Above) of the slave ship Brookes, from Thomas Clarkson's 1808 "History of the Abolition of the African Slave Trade," were used by a British parliamentary committee to dramatize the slaves' suffering. The parliamentary committee estimated that 450 slaves of all ages could be carried on this ship, whose lower deck was 100 feet long and 25 feet wide. It was later proved that this ship carried as many as 609 slaves on a single voyage.

old dispatches from West Africa include Matthew Calbraith Perry, who opened up Japan, and enjoyed neither of his two West African commands; Josiah Tatnall, who told the British commodore that "Blood is thicker than water;" Andrew H. Foote, whose gunboats on the western waters were to do so much to destroy the Confederacy and who protested vigorously against the unnecessary restrictions imposed on commanders on the African station.

Patrols Hampered

The basic cause of their frustration was the south's growing reluctance to see any aspect of slavery damaged, at home or abroad. Southern congressmen encouraged the navy department to drag its feet. Orders made it clear that the African squadron's first concern was not hunting slavers but protecting the American-sponsored colony of Liberia for free Negroes and the growing American-West African trade.

Britain had tried hard to quicken the U. S. government's lagging steps. After 1808 she had used diplomacy, cash payments, and force to persuade each maritime nation that had outlawed the slave trade to sign with her a treaty of "reciprocal search and seizure" to help enforce the antislaving declarations. By 1840 she had signed up all the major maritime powers — except the United States.

By the late 1840's the typical slaver was a big, fast, stateside-built ship with a few Yankees among a mixed crew of foreign skimmings (the Rebecca had Turks, Scots, Greeks, Danes, Italians, and Spaniards). The slaver indulged in games of tag with antislaving patrol ships, usually British, using her United States registry as a mask for actual Latin-American ownership represented by men who were nominally "passengers," and having Cuba as destination and market. More and more New York came to dominate this cross industry. In the 20 months ending August, 1860, a good 100 slavers were known to have fitted out in and sailed from New York harbor.

Enforcement Joke

United States' registry, combined with a set of bogus Spanish or Portuguese papers easily obtainable by bribery, was the basic dodge. If the ship were challenged by a U. S. Navy cruiser, she hoisted Spanish colors, say, and the Spanish "passenger," temporarily turned captain, showed the Spanish papers to the boarding party, while the American captain stayed out of sight. If the cruiser were British, the slaver hoisted American colors, and could usually count on being left unmolested.

Even in the unusual cases where slave ships were seized and condemned in federal courts, front-men acting for their former owners often bought them back again. The whole shore phase of the enforcement of antislaving laws was a joke. For all the law's big talk about piracy and the galleys, slaver captains saw the insides of jails only long enough for bail to be raised.

At sea, however, the picture was brighter. British and American naval officers got on well when their paths crossed off West Africa. Their common distaste for the abuse of American colors sometimes led them to combine operations. But Washington frowned on all such arrangements.

To judge by their logs, U. S. Navy ships even used British colors in approaching suspicious vessels. It would seem that this ruse accounted for the extreme but well-deserved hard luck of Capt. Nathaniel Gordon of Portland, Maine.

First to Hang

In 1860 his ship, leaving the West African coast, found herself pursued by a man-of-war, a steamer. Whatever his reason for assuming she was British — perhaps he caught a glimpse of a white ensign — Capt. Gordon had good reason to prefer not to be boarded. Up went the Stars and Stripes. The stranger was actually

Illicit Slave Trading Wrote a Sordid Story

BY J. C. FURNAS

The American merchantman Mary Ann was primarily named, but she had a scandalous history. In 1848 she cleared for West Africa, ostensibly on a trading voyage for such products as palm oil, which the new American railroads and factories used as a lubricant. Her mates and crew seemed to have signed on unaware that any other scheme was in the wind. But her captain took her not to the mouth of the Niger, focus of the palm oil trade, but to the Gallinas river area, notorious for its bootleg slave markets.

Forty years before, Great Britain and the United States had declared slave trading to be piracy, subject to capital punishment. But booms in sugar and coffee kept Cuba and Brazil hungry for slave labor, and immense profits from slave smuggling brought unscrupulous seamen and shipowners flocking like buzzards into a rich racket.

Captain Put Ashore

The captain of the Mary Ann was one of these. But his crewmen were not, and at the sight of the dismal Gallinas shore they decided they wanted no part whatever in the skipper's plans. So, taking things into their own hands, they put him ashore and sailed off down the coast looking for a U. S. Navy vessel to which they could surrender. Finding none, they took the Mary Ann back to New York, turned her over to the federal authorities — and promptly found themselves in serious trouble. The court held there had been "probable cause" for the arrest of the Mary Ann as a slaver, but it was lenient with the members of the crew, and let them off with no heavier penalty than forfeiture of their wages for both outward and homeward voyages. Considering the innocence of their motives, the penalty seems heavy enough.

Now contrast this with the history of another American ship, the Rebecca, also Africa-bound on an ostensibly legitimate voyage in 1859. She was a Baltimore-built clipper of a design renowned for speed, and she was transporting 40-odd freed Negroes from New Orleans to settle in Liberia; from there she was to continue to the Congo river with two Spanish traders and their stocks of goods. Nearing Liberia she was overhauled by the steamer H. M. S. Viper, a small British man-of-war on antislaving duty. The Viper's commander, apparently well aware that the Rebecca enjoyed a dubious reputation, was much annoyed to find her on so innocent a mission, but he allowed her to proceed. She duly landed the emigrants and their belongings and then, once at sea again, she assumed her true character — that of a slaver procuring Negroes for the quasi-official slave market in Cuba.

Two-Timing Ship

Her real owners were not the New Orleans firm that had registered her as American, but the two Spanish "passengers." They had sought this Liberian errand as a way to secure unimpeachable clearance papers, and they now took over as captain and supercargo. They mustered the crew and signed the ship's company to new articles at wages eloquent of how well slave bootlegging paid: captain and mate were to receive $5,000 each for the voyage; second mate, $3,500; carpenter, $3,000; seamen, $1,500 each — this at a time when a dollar bought six or seven times what it does now.

Patrol on Prowl

After some mischances and delays, the Rebecca entered the Congo to size up the situation and, if possible, to get "slaved." Just at that most inopportune moment, H. M. S. Tigris, another British patrol ship, apparently also well alerted, came prowling along and set an armed boat's crew to keep round-the-clock watch of the Rebecca. Then appeared a Portuguese cruiser — even less welcome because, whereas the British usually turned slaver crews loose after confiscating the ships, the Portuguese had lately developed a nasty habit of sending slavers to their rugged penal colonies. H. M. S. Vixen (a third Britisher) and the fast-sailing U. S. S. Vincennes were also rumored to be in the vicinity. There were altogether too many men-of-war thereabouts, and sulkily the Rebecca dropped down the river still un-"slaved," and ostentatiously put to sea on a northwesterly course.

When she was well over the horizon her Spanish commander had her hove to, stripped of all identifying marks, and further disguised with a coat of black paint. He then sailed back, landing well south of the Congo to get "slaved" quickly and away. In a short time the Rebecca had taken aboard almost 1,200 Negroes, mostly men and boys, who would fetch perhaps $400,000 at Cuban prices. Just as the last few were coming on board, the Vixen hove in sight. As the Rebecca hastily weighed anchor, the Vixen, finding her warning shots ignored, opened fire in earnest at long range. But her gunnery was not all it might have been. The Rebecca got to sea unscathed and, thanks to her Baltimore breeding, soon showed her heels to the puffing little teakettle.

The Rebecca's owners probably netted $150,000 on the voyage, the equivalent of three quarters of a million dollars today.

Ill-Equipped Navy

Between them, the caper of the Rebecca — carried out under the Stars and Stripes — and that ironical miscarriage of justice in the Mary Ann case point up two curious, interconnected scandals that were at their ripest a hundred years ago: the genius of American shore authorities for making the antislaving laws look foolish, and the U. S. Navy's poor record in bringing slave ships to book.

The navy's poor showing was more the fault of politicians than of commodores. In 1842, six years before the

The American Clipper Rebecca, with almost 1,200 slaves on board, outran the British and Portuguese patrol boats that challenged her. Net profit to Rebecca's owners for the "slaving" voyage probably was $150,000, the equivalent of three quarters of a million dollars today.

Mary Ann affair, the United States had formally agreed with Britain that each should maintain off the West African coast an antislaving squadron mounting a total of at least 80 guns. Regularly spurred by zealous antislavery cabinet ministers, the British Navy, except during the short naval emergency of the Crimean war, always assigned ships far in excess of this requirement. The American squadron, on the other hand, was seldom much above quota and often fell well below it. Number of ships, not of guns, was the crucial thing. The British Navy used small men-of-war on this duty, their squadron averaging 18 vessels in the period 1842-57. The squadron of the U. S. Navy averaged four.

The most illustrious ships of the old Navy — Constitution, Constellation, United States, Macedonian — and a good number of famous navy officers served in the African squadron. Names on the

49ers, Rams Meet in Toss-Up Affair; Giants Face Cardinals

New York 1-Touchdown Choice; Baltimore Visits Washington

BY JIM KENSIL
Of The Associated Press

The San Francisco 49ers and the New York Giants continue their drives toward conference titles in the National Football league Sunday. But the Giants' route is a freeway compared with the mountain climb facing the 49ers.

San Francisco, Western conference leader with a 5-1 record, is at Los Angeles for a pick-em game with the Rams. It is the first of four straight road games for the 49ers, who meet contending clubs in four of their last six games.

7-Point Pick

Eastern leader New York, defending its division title with a 5-1 mark, is a 7-point favorite over the visiting Chicago Cardinals. The Giants leave New York only twice in the second half of the season and five of their games are with the Cards, Pittsburgh Steelers and Washington Redskins. The latter three share the Eastern cellar.

The Giants' one big worry is Cleveland—at New York Dec. 8. The Browns (4-2) are tied for second in the East with the Philadelphia Eagles. But Cleveland is favored by eight points at home to whip Philadelphia Sunday.

The defending NFL champion Baltimore Colts (4-2), who trail the 49ers by a game, are at Washington in an inter-conference rivalry. The Colts, who get two cracks at San Francisco before the season ends, are favored by 9½ over the Skins.

In another inter-conference game, the Detroit Lions (1-5), the West's poorest team, meet Pittsburgh. The Steelers, with quarterback Bobby Layne throwing against his former teammates, are 6-point home favorites.

The Chicago Bears, in a 2-4 fourth-place tie with the Rams, get a chance to avenge an opening day defeat.

Despite a string of injuries to offensive stars, the Giants have managed to stay in front because of a firm defense. It will have to be that way again against the Cardinals. No. 1 Giant quarterback Charley Conerly and his top pass receiver, Ed McCaffrey, are

Eddie Dancisak Rejoins Quinn In Philadelphia

Former Appleton Manager Leaves Braves' Post

(From AP Dispatches)

Milwaukee — Veteran scout Eddie Dancisak has quit the Milwaukee Braves to follow his old boss, General Manager John Quinn, to the Philadelphia Phillies.

Dancisak was the first manager of the Appleton Packers of the old Wisconsin State league, leading the club from 1940 to 1942.

An outfielder here, playing-manager Dancisak piloted the best club Appleton ever had in the old circuit, with such men as outfielder Pat Seery and Joe Tipton—both of whom later made the American league.

In recent years Dancisak has appeared here often, scouting Three-I league games at Goodland field and helping to run the Appleton Post-Crescent-Braves Silver Sluggers school.

Quinn Man

"I'm strictly a Quinn man," Dancisak said Friday. "Besides, I'm leaving to better myself financially. I'll be drawing a considerably larger salary and I feel I can do more things in Philadelphia."

Dancisak will handle the same territory for the Phils as he had with the Braves since joining the club in 1949. That includes Wisconsin, Upper Michigan and Iowa. In addition, he will supervise scouts in Illinois.

Before going with the Braves, he scouted three years for the old St. Louis Browns. One of his prize signers was Ryne Duren, now the relief specialist for the New York Yankees.

Dancisak has signed such promising youngsters as Johnny De Merit, Dennis Overby and Dennis Menke of the Braves.

Chicago — This could be one of the great Packer-Bear games!

At least it's the biggest combined "must-win" battle the two clubs have engaged in for years!

The Packers have a 3-3 record; they're still very much in the Western division championship running. The Bears have 2-4 and they figure the eventual champ will lose four and maybe five.

The explosion will be set off in Wrigley field, starting at 1:05 Sunday afternoon. A sellout crowd of around 49,000 will watch the eighty-second game between pro football's oldest and bitterest rivals.

Not Much Chance

It's tough for anybody to beat the Bears on their home turf and the Bruins don't lose many games there—especially to Green Bay. The Packers won two games there since 1941, an 18-year stretch.

The experts don't give the Packers much chance of winning. The Bears are favored by some seven points — just as they were in the opener in Green Bay Sept. 27. Green Bay won 9-6 in a big surprise.

The Packers hope to come up with a surprise Sunday—a scoring offense. They were held without a touchdown in two of their last three games.

Green Bay's chances rest on the good right arm, and shoulder, of quarterback Lamar McHan, the former Cardinal who is an old Bear hater. McHan has been bothered by a shoulder injury and his passing has been off. He displayed some improvement this week and could be in top form tomorrow.

Running Match

The game will mark the "return" of fullback Jim Taylor who missed games 3, 4 and 5, and played in only a few plays of game 6 due to a home accident. Taylor gained 98 yards in 22 attempts in the first Bear game and his running is expected to "open up" the rest of the Packer backfield, meaning Paul Hornung and Don McIlhenny.

Since the Packers' aerial success depends so much on the club's running and since the Bears rushed brilliantly in beating the Rams last Sunday, the game is expected to develop into a running match. Rick Casares rolled up 80 yards vs. LA.

Both teams, however, have the good air arm, with McHan hurling at Max McGee, Gary Knafele and Boyd Dowler, and Ed Brown to Harlon Hill, Bill McColl, Jim Dooley and a host of others.

The Packers' major hope will be a fierce performance by the offensive line, which would be a "comeback" from a week ago when the Bays gained only 69 yards rushing and 112 passing against the Giants.

Another Bell-Ringer

Packer coach Vince Lombardi is expecting the Packer defense to come up with another bell ringer — a must if the Bears are to be beaten. The defense unit has two stiff-neck cases — Tom Bettis and Em Tunnell, but both will be ready. Ray Nitschke has a wobbly knee. Playing in his home state, Nitschke probably will be like new Sunday.

The club's fifth linebacker, incidentally, is Ken Beck.

The Packer defenders will probably look at Brown as the first Bear quarterback. Zeke Bratkowski started in the opener in Green Bay and was the losing pitcher, though Brown finished. In the exhibition starter in Milwaukee, Brown started and Bratkowski won it in the last few seconds. Rudy Bukich is the Bears' third QB.

The Bears likely will make little use of returnee Stan Wallace unless he had been working out on his own. Wallace, a 4-year veteran, defensive back, was a holdout during the first half of the season.

The Packers will fly back to Green Bay after the game, landing shortly before 7 o'clock Sunday night.

America Leads In Ryder Matches

Palm Desert, Calif. — It may not be a shot heard 'round the world but it had international reverberations in golf today.

It was a bad-judgment shot by Great Britain's veteran professional, Harry Weetman, in the Ryder cup golf matches. It cost the British half a point and found them trailing the United States, 2½ points to 1½ points, as players from the rival countries went into today's decisive singles matches at the Eldorado Country Club.

A Very Important Addition to the Green Bay Packers' defensive platoon this season is Emlen Tunnell, safety man. Tunnell, who admits to being 34 years old, starred for the New York Giants for 12 years before being traded to the Packers last summer. A trademark of his is the tackle at the line of scrimmage, or behind it, from his safety position.

Dillon's Interception Record Is Lagging

Post-Crescent News Service

Chicago — The Packers are finding gold in the big towns — Baltimore, New York and Chicago. Given a sellout of 49,000 for the Bear battle Sunday, the Packers will have drawn a total of 174,388 in the flesh paying customers in their current 3-game road trip.

A sellout of 57,557 turned out in Baltimore and a standing-room crowd of 67,831 saw the big fuss in New York's Yankee stadium last Sunday. The three games average out to 38,129.

It's A Crime

Millions saw the two big eastern games on television — on the Colt, Giant and Packer networks. As one scribe wrote in a New York paper, "it's a crime the Giants are coming home; only 67,000 can see them in Yankee stadium; when they're away, 3,000,000 see them in New York."

That's true here, too. More people in Packerland "saw" the Packers play in Baltimore and New York on TV than will attend games in Green Bay in the next five years. Four games here will pull back after two straight defeats to whip North Carolina, 14-7, in the Orange bowl.

Fran Curci, Miami's amazing little 152-pound quarterback, sparked the winners. He scored one touchdown and figured in the other with a pitch-out as well as breaking up two North Carolina drives.

In another Friday game the undefeated College of Emporia team clinched the Kansas conference championship by trouncing Ottawa (Kan.) 28-9 for its eighth straight victory.

The Giant organization, thinks a lot of Vince Lombardi. The Giants felt it was quite an accomplishment beating Vince's team.

What's about Bobby Dillon? "Only one interception. He usually has five or six at this stage of the season."

"I feel good — better than ever, in fact," Bobby said the other day, adding: "I think I've been in the right place, but I've dropped one (interception) that I should have had. The coaching is excellent and I guess it's just one of those things. None of us had too many chances to intercept. I guess maybe the quarterbacks are being more careful, and I don't think they're throwing as much either."

Ern Tunnell, Dillon's partner at safety, said "we're not trying for too many interceptions."

Earns Bout With Machen DeJohn Disposes of Powell In 47 Seconds of 1st Round

Syracuse, N. Y. — Big Mike DeJohn's smashing 47-second disposal of Charlie Powell has earned him a bout with slick Eddie Machen and a long-awaited chance to move up in the heavyweight ranks.

DeJohn caught the former footballer cold with a right to the heart and a vicious left hook and dumped Powell three times before Referee Joe Palmer called a halt to the nationally televised 10-round Friday night.

Powell sat down after the second blow. He got up and

Don Jordan Spends Evenings In Night Clubs, Not Fighting

Los Angeles —(AP)— Young Don Jordan, welterweight champion of the world, occupies a coveted niche in the game of boxing. Some say the 25-year-old Los Angeles fighter has yet to realize his real possibilities. Some say he is only the best of a mediocre crop of 147-pounders. But everybody is wondering why he isn't fighting. Jordan won the title here last Dec. 5. He has had two fights since, whipping ex-champion Virgil Atkins in a rematch and outpointing a Port-

Rosensohn Enterprises' License Lost

New York State Athletic Body Takes Action

New York —(AP)— There appears to be more boxing activity in commission rooms and law courts than in the ring these days. The New York State Athletic commission, which Friday suspended the license of Rosensohn Enterprises incorporated, has adjourned its hearings until noon (EST) Tuesday. The commission has been investigating alleged irregularities in the promotion of the Floyd Patterson-Ingemar Johansson heavyweight title fight at Yankee stadium June 26. There's no telling how long this inquiry will continue. After the hearings comes the appeals in court. Nicholas Atlas, an attorney who made a special appearance Friday for REI, said he was going to ask the State Supreme Court for a ruling on the commission's jurisdiction in the REI verdict. Lost Jurisdiction Atlas contends that the commission lost its jurisdiction because REI's promotional license expired Sept. 30 and that show caused order against the firm in this hearing was dated Oct. 26. The commission suspended REI Aug. 14. The attorney had asked for, and been refused, a 2-week adjournment because of the illness of Vincent Velella, president of REI. Atlas produced a letter from Velella's physician saying Velella was suffering from "nervous exhaustion." The commission made five charges against Cus D'Amato, suspended manager of Patterson, and three against REI and Rosensohn. After D'Amato and Rosensohn were questioned on the witness stand Friday by Julius November, D'Amato's lawyer, November asked for dismissal of three of the five charges against his client. The commission reserved decision of the motion. The commission's revocation against REI was for failure to notify the commission of a transfer in stock by Rosensohn to Velella and failure to advise the commission of changes in the board of directors.

EWA Cage Season Will Open Tonight

New Holstein —(AP)— The Eastern Wisconsin Amateur Basketball league begins its fourteenth season this weekend. For tonight's games, Plymouth will be at Brillion and New Holstein at Hilbert. Sunday night, the defending champion Menasha Macs play host to Neenah. In other Sunday games, Denmark will be at Kiel and Chilton at Valders. The league will play a split season. The first round ends Jan. 3. If each round produces a different champion, a best-of-3 playoff series will begin March 2.

Little Hillsdale Streaks Toward New Bowl Bid

'Muddy' Waters Compiles .941 Coaching Mark

Hillsdale, Mich. —(AP)— They don't call Michigan the champion of the West any longer and Michigan State's multiple offense isn't fooling them the way it used to — but little Hillsdale college keeps rolling along in high style. Its 34-game winning streak was broken a couple of years ago in the Holiday bowl but the Dales are streaking again and aiming for another bowl bid.

Hillsdale is the state's only undefeated — untied football team, with a 7-0 mark and a whopping 244-to-43 scoring bulge on its seven victims. The Dales were expected to breeze through their last two opponents. A victory over Kalamazoo college today would mean a sixth straight championship in the Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic association, a 7-team football conference.

Holds MSU Record
This quiet town, which seldom gets excited except on football Saturdays, now claims it has the nation's most successful coach over the long haul.

He is Frank "Muddy" Waters, a born optimist who will have more lettermen this fall than his college has teachers. A former Michigan State football coach who still holds the Spartans' record with 31 carries in one game, Waters has his 65-man squad doing just about everything. The Dales utilize the single wing, double wing, wide-T, winged-T, straight-T, power-T — well, just about everything except the lonesome end. Since he came to Hillsdale in 1954, Waters' teams have compiled a regular season mark of 48-3-1, a winning percentage of .941.

"I know they'd just as soon have us leave the conference," said Waters. "But record. Said Dan Reeves, president: "Taking it out on the coach (Sid Gillman) is only natural. He's always the whipping boy. The coach takes the blows when the team wins; he takes the abuse when it loses. But I'm a golfer. I never believe in changing my game in the middle of my back swing."

The Packers are one of the three surprises of the National Football league this season. Joining them are the 49ers and Eagles. They have all improved two games or better over a year ago at this time. After six games in 1958, the Packers had a 1-4-1 record, the Eagles 1-4-1 and the 49ers 3-3. Green Bay now has 3-3, the Eagles 4-2 and the 49ers unhappy with the club's 2-4-1.

Eagles' McDonald Regains 8 of His 20 Lost Pounds

Philadelphia —(AP)— The Philadelphia Eagles will be ready physically for the Cleveland Browns Sunday, Coach "Buck" Shaw says. Shaw said his passing catching star, Tommy McDonald, is beginning to regain a lot of lost weight. McDonald, normally a 182-pounder, weighed in at 162 a week ago. He hadn't eaten solid foods for more than five weeks because of a hairline face fracture. But the bone is healing now and he is starting to eat solids again. He tipped the scale at 170 today. Shaw feels loss of weight sapped the former Oklahoma's energy. McDonald has scored seven touchdowns in six games this year.

Chicago —(AP)— The Chicago Cardinals Thursday reported the first claim payment under the National Football league's pension and benefit plan was made to defensive halfback Jimmy Hill. Cardinal Managing Director Walter Wolfner said a check for $523.64 was awarded to Hill for his wife's illness, diagnosed as mercury poisoning. The NFL's plan of group insurance protects the families of players and the players themselves in the off-season. It is financed by proceeds from the All-Star game, Pro bowl game and championship game TV.

Pittsburgh —(AP)— Coach "Buddy" Parker has been putting his Pittsburgh Steelers through some extra-heavy workouts this week in preparation for the National Football league clash against the Detroit Lions here Sunday. Parker said Friday he expected a rough game with the Lions. Parker and his star quarterback, Bobby Layne, were formerly with the Lions.

Brown, at a news conference, said he didn't know all facts of the Bates injury and wasn't taking sides.

First Bobcat Foe Looms As Contender

Minneapolis Adds Two All-Americans To Their Roster

Green Bay — The revamped Minneapolis Millers, who help Green Bay's Bobcats open their first Central Hockey league season here Nov. 13, have stamped themselves as championship contenders by the addition of two former All-Americans and one of the nation's top senior defensemen.

The Millers, who launched a major rebuilding program after finishing low in the 1958-59 Central league race, are building around center Dick Burg and goalie Jack McCartan, both All-America selections at the University of Minnesota in 1958, and Bobby Owen, St. Louis Park, Minn., defenseman.

All three were members of the 1959 United States National team, who drove to a third-place tie with Czechoslovakia in last year's world hockey championships at Prague.

Makes 1,500 Stops
McCartan, a native of St. Paul, who has made more than 1,500 stops in the last three seasons, was an All-America choice in 1957 as well as 1958. Burg, an all-city choice in three sports at Minneapolis Central High school, played three varsity seasons at the University of Minnesota.

Bobby Owen, son of Eddie Owen who once played for Pittsburgh and Cleveland in the American Hockey league, is rated as the best senior defenseman in the nation, with the exception of Bobcat Player-coach Johnny Mayasich.

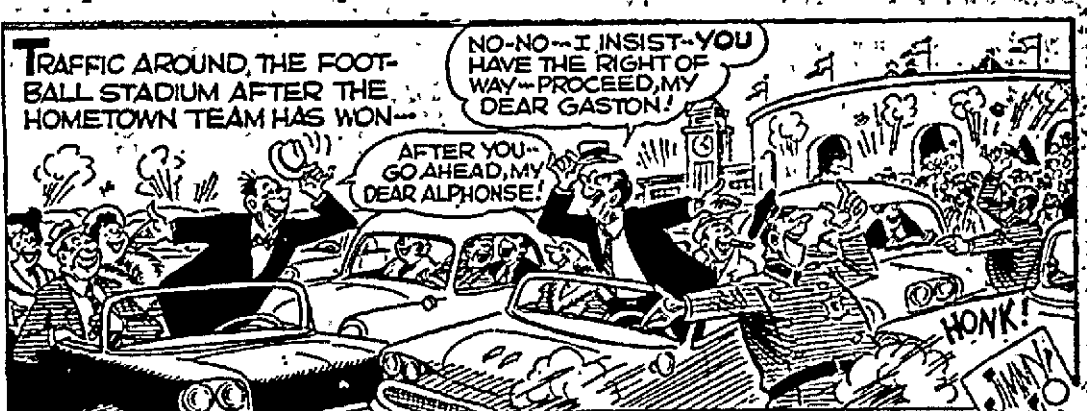

The Millers also have reinforced with the addition of wingman Bob Turk, another 1959 Nationals player who won three varsity letters at Minnesota.

Hold-overs include Paul McKinnon of Williams, Minn., former North Dakota University star and member of a hockey playing family. Brother, Danny McKinnon, starred for the United States in the 1956 Olympics and also played with the 1958 Nationals.

The Millers invade the Brown County arena for a 2-game series Nov. 13-14.

ARD Starts Grade Cage Slate Nov. 28

The Appleton Recreation department plans to start its grade school basketball program more than a month earlier than it did last season.

League play is due to begin Saturday, Nov. 28. The deadline for submitting team entries is Friday, Nov. 20. Entries should be mailed or brought to the Recreation department office, City Hall.

Leagues will be organized for fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth grade boys. A girls' league will be formed for seventh and eighth graders only.

Games are to be played after school on weekdays and on Saturdays. Ten medals will be awarded to the championship team in each league. All team members must be students of the school they represent.

receivers, halfback Frank Gifford and end Bob Schnelker all are sidelined.

The 49ers wrecked the Rams, 34-0, at San Francisco last month, but Los Angeles' quarterback Billy Wade and breakaway halfback Jon Arnett were injured at the time. Since then Wade has taken the NFL passing lead and Arnett has mended to team with Ollie Matson, the league's second leading ground gainer, to give the club the lead in team offense.

The big man in rushing is Cleveland's Jimmy Brown with 737 yards and a share of the league TD lead with eight. The Eagles' Tommy McDonald also has scored eight times. It will be Brown's running vs. McDonald's pass receiving in the showdown at Cleveland.

As usual, the Colts will be looking to quarterback Johnny Unitas to dazzle the Redskins. Unitas, who has thrown for 17 TDs in six games, tries for league game No. 32 in which he has thrown at least one scoring pass.

Red Activities Grow in U. S., Latin America

Mass Infiltration More Successful Since 1948

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington — President Eisenhower, in discussing the riots and demonstrations against the United States embassy in Panama, spoke of "extremists," and, in referring to Cuba, said that communists like to fish in troubled waters, and there are certainly troubled waters there."

Mr. Eisenhower reaffirmed a recent statement by the American government with reference to the communist menace in Latin American countries. He said it was "a little bit puzzling" to him why this should occur in the face of the record of friendship of the United States for Panama. He might have added a reference to the way the United States helped that country to gain independence.

Mr. Eisenhower probably didn't mean that he is in doubt about how such episodes arise, but that he is puzzled as to why governments let such things happen within their borders. The communist technique is to seize upon any controversial question, no matter how long it has been dormant, in order to play upon the nationalistic feelings of the people.

Communists in U. S. What is puzzling is that the communists get away with their infiltration tactics. Even the communist party in the United States, protected as it is by various decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States now boldly reveals its part in helping to stir up trouble inside this country not only in the ranks of labor but wherever the school "integration" problem and questions affecting Negroes are raised.

The latest revelation comes from Herbert Apteker, an American citizen, who has just written for the communist party organ in Moscow an article boasting about what the American communist party has done to further the objectives of communism. Mr. Apteker testified before the subversive activities control board in 1949 as an expert on "Marxism-Leninism" and acknowledged at that time membership in the American communist party. Mr. Apteker gives a glowing description of how the communist party has recently gained new strength in the United States. He says this occurred after the defeat of what he calls "McCarthyism" — the party's biggest opposition. He adds:

"After the 16th congress the party began nursing its wounds and restoring its strength. The national committee plenum which took place in Feb., 1958, was symptomatic in this respect. It insured the further rallying of the party on the basis of the principles of Marxism-Leninism. This permitted the overcoming of the paralysis which in the course of a number of months had been inhibiting the activities of the party."

Renewed Activities "Organizational activities revived, the loss in the number of party members was made up, and a certain number of new members, particularly among the youth, was acquired. The party tackled educational work and the dissemination of Marxist literature."

"The most important thing was that the party resumed participation in mass work. This refers to the inter-trade union struggle, to a demonstration of jobless people that took place recently, to certain aspects of the struggle of the Negroes, particularly to the movement for integrated children's education in schools."

"The party plays a considerable role in the struggle against military preparations and the foreign policy of 'cold war.' It extends assistance to various mass anti-militaristic organizations and has begun developing a struggle for peace directly among the masses. In recent times, it has organized street meetings and demonstrations in some very large cities."

This disclosure from the pen of a prominent American communist may come as a surprise to those in this country who constantly pooh-pooh the threat of communism and call communism merely another political belief. It doesn't surprise those in our government who have been watching the activities of the communist apparatus at close range. Organizing street demonstrations, whether in Little Rock or Chicago, or creating a flag incident in Panama City or west Berlin isn't any-

Medical Expenses Give Tax Relief

BY SYLVIA PORTER

Countless numbers of taxpayers completely waste the tax-saving value of their medical expenses every year because they don't know how to manage these expenses for maximum tax advantage.

You will be in this group. But you still have the 51 days between now and Dec. 31 to arrange your medical expenses so they'll cut the income tax you owe for 1959 or that you will owe for 1960.

"There are definite steps which should be taken before Jan. 1 by millions of taxpayers to keep their 1959 and 1960 taxes as low as possible," says Leon Gold, top tax expert of the Research Institute of America.

Percentage Limits Under the law, if you're under 65, you can deduct medical expenses above 3 per cent of your total adjusted gross income up to a maximum of $10,000. You can include your expenses the cost of drugs and medicines above 1 per cent of your adjusted gross income.

What this means is that when your medical expenses in any single year do not exceed the 3 per cent requirement, you have completely wasted your spending on medical care from a tax point of view.

So add up your medical bills now, check how they compare with your adjusted gross income in 1959.

Accelerate Or Defer Then consider how you can accelerate or defer expenses in these weeks to boost expenses above the 3 per cent limit in at least one of the two taxable years.

As an illustration, let's say your adjusted gross income is $8,000 a year and your medical expenses are around $240 a year.

You're right on the 3 per cent borderline. You won't get any medical expense deduction this year and if your income and expenses are about the same in 1960, you won't get any deduction next year either.

You can bunch into the next 51 days medical expenses that you know you'll be incurring in the next several months and by so doing, raise your expenses above the 3 per cent requirement. Once you're above that limit, the government will share in paying your medical bills.

Dental Work You might, for example, go ahead next month with a costly medical treatment you had figured you'd start in January. You might complete dental work that you or members of your family are now undergoing and pay the bills before Dec. 31. You might buy supplies of drugs and medicines you'll need in early 1960. You might pay premiums due on your health or hospitalization insurance.

Don't let the fact that you haven't the cash on hand to pay the bills stop you. For tax purposes, it's common sense to borrow the money to pay now. Then you'll not only get the medical deduction but also a deduction for the interest on your loan.

Or let's say your medical expenses this year are way below the 3 per cent requirement and you expect them to be heavier in 1960.

In this case, turn the above advice upside-down and instead of moving up payments to 1959, delay what you can until after Jan. 1. This will boost your expenses high enough to give you the deduction in 1960.

Huge Limits Or let's say your medical expenses this year have been so overwhelming that you've about the maximum ceilings on deductions. For the under-65 filing a separate return, the maximum deductions are $2,500 or $5,000, depending whether there is one exemption or more. For those filing a joint return, the ceilings are $5,000 or $7,500 or $10,000, depending on whether the exemptions are two, three or more.

In this case, you should try to defer payment of your excess expenses until 1960 so you won't lose a penny in medical deductions.

"The significant angle," emphasizes Gold, "is that once you've checked your bills and know where you stand, you can speed expenses and their payment or delay them to give you a maximum tax advantage."

Bill Russell, 'Still' Set for 1st Collision

Unbeaten Boston, Philadelphia Fives Meet Tonight

Boston — Comes now the most widely-heralded personal duel in professional basketball history — the clash of Bill Russell and Wilt Chamberlain.

Those two, who rank as giants both in size and professional stature, collide tonight when the NBA champion Boston Celtics take on the rejuvenated Philadelphia Warriors in the first of their 13 scheduled meetings this season.

Each team is unbeaten this season, Boston in five games and Philadelphia in three, and the Eastern division lead rides on the match. That, however, is almost incidental to the Russell-Chamberlain affair.

Provides Defense Russell, the San Francisco product who provided the defense and rebounding needed to bring Boston two world championships in three seasons, is generally regarded as the greatest defensive player in the game, possibly in history. He is 6-foot-10.

Chamberlain, who played last season with the touring Harlem Globetrotters, is in his rookie year in professional basketball's big league. But he's made a big splash.

He has averaged 39.6 points a game in three starts, and coaches and players throughout the league have forecast that he'll rewrite the scoring records. One coach recently predicted Chamberlain someday will score 90 in single game.

He owns a height advantage of about three to five inches over Russell (there are no official figures on his height, but it's generally figured to be about 7 feet 1 to 7 feet 3) and outweighs big Bill by about 40 pounds.

Russell is off to his greatest start yet as a pro. He has averaged 22.2 points a game so far this season, far over his usual average, and has a 25.3 average on rebounds, higher than his previous league-leading marks.

Conger Scoring Champ in State College Loop

Oshkosh — Gene Conger of La Crosse scored 54 points to win individual football scoring honors in the Wisconsin State college conference this season.

Conger edged out Whitewater's Harry Nordentoft, who had 58 points. Fred Pongratz of La Crosse was third with 41, followed by Mick Lauber of River Falls with 30.

Gary Player Wins Victorian Open

Melbourne, Australia — Down two strokes after the third round, Gary Player of South Africa bounced back today with an afternoon final round of 67 and won the $2,240 Victorian Open Golf championship with a 72-hole score of 275.

The British open champion, who will compete in the Canada cup matches here Nov. 20-21, finishing a convincing five strokes ahead of Harold Henning, also from South Africa.

Athletics Apparently in Kansas City to Stay

Kansas City — The Athletics appear to be in Kansas City to stay.

Rural Park Facilities Up, State Asserts

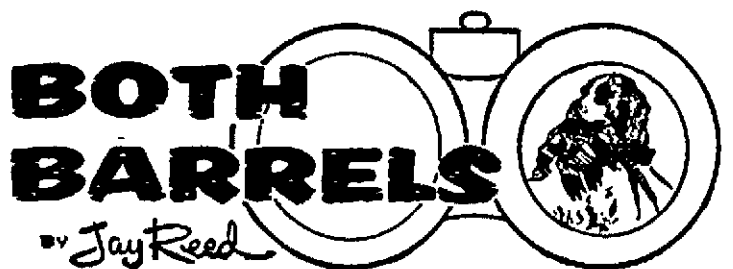

But Most Areas are Short on Acreage, Report Declares

Madison — Counties have enlarged county-operated rural park facilities by more than 40 per cent during this decade, but only ten out of 72 in the state now provide the 10 acres of park lands per 1,000 of population which recreational specialists regard as minimum.

Public Demand

So found the state conservation department in a survey of county park resources made in the hope that it would be useful in the development of an integrated public recreational program in the state.

The department said that if the state-operated and financed recreational forests, it and parks and national parks was indicated.

This reporter is a hard loser when it comes to hunting or fishing. Over the years I've had my share—maybe more than my share—of trips afield which produced nothing. And it hurts just as much now as it did the first time it happened.

But I learned a long time ago not to be too disappointed at being outsmarted by birds or animals. They are, after all, a lot smarter than any man who goes out in an attempt to kill them. If that were not so there wouldn't be anything left to hunt.

And so, like most hunters, I've come to know that you can enjoy a hunting trip even if you fail to bag whatever it is you're after.

Yesterday is a case in point. I spent the greater share of Friday's daylight hours chasing Hungarian partridge over the cold and sullen fields of east-central Brown county. With me were three old hands at Hun gunning — Harold Shine, district game manager at Green Bay; Wilbur Stites, Madison, radio and television director for the conservation department; and Jim Taylor, Madison, director of publications for the department.

We flushed a half-dozen coveys through the day — all of them more than once. We got some shooting, but no birds.

When we started hunting, the sun cast cheerless slants of light over the snow-swept fields but, by the time we had finished working the first creek bottom, clouds hung leaden and gray in the sky and the wind carried an edge like a freshly-honed skinning knife. It was very, very cold.

Shine is a veteran Hun hunter. Stites and Taylor had been after them many times before. This was my first trip. I'd flushed them before while hunting pheasants but I'd never been on a hunt with the Hun as a particular target.

It seemed to me uncanny how the birds would anticipate our every move. They'd flush nearly always out of range and manage to avert all of us no matter where we were located or how well we had the covey surrounded. It was a thrill to see the birds work.

Then, too, it was a particular joy to see Stites' young German Shorthair come to a halting, quivering point. It's good to watch a young dog working, learning by doing. You see the animal's potential and you can almost feel the fierce joy it holds in its breast as it moves on a covey.

Like I said in the beginning — I'm a hard loser and I hate as much as any man alive to come home from a hunt empty handed. But there'll be another day. . .

May Junk Advisory Plan for Picking New Commissioners

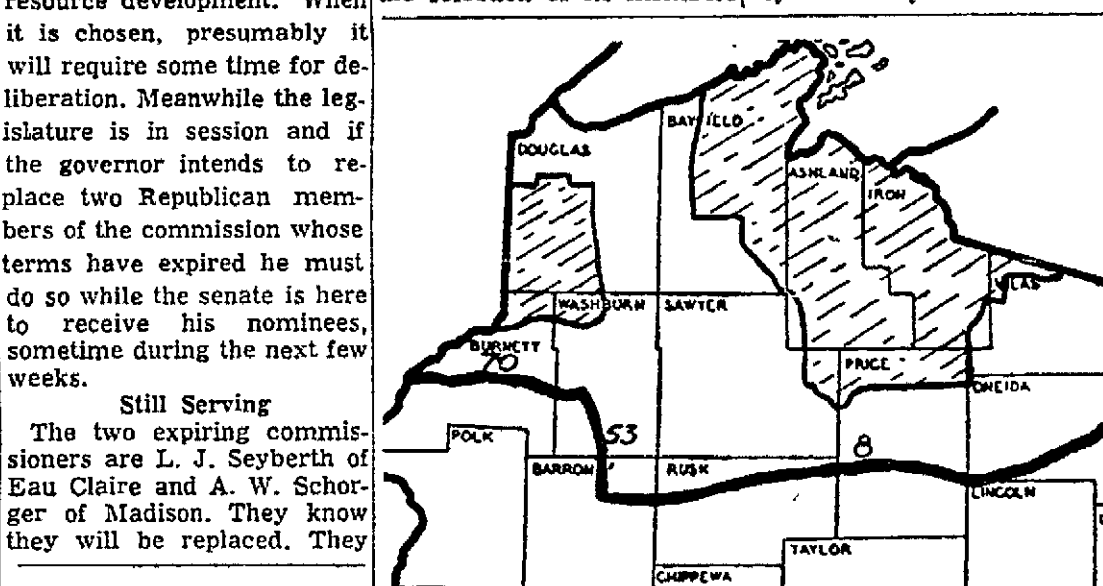

2 Holdovers Still Sit on Game Body

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison — Gov. Nelson's plan to name two new members of the state conservation commission with the help of a state-wide advisory committee representing all natural resource and related interests may be abandoned.

He has not yet appointed the advisory committee of 15 members he is authorized to create as a wing of the new state department of economic resource development. When it is chosen, presumably it will require some time for deliberation. Meanwhile the legislature is in session and if the governor intends to replace two Republican members of the commission whose terms have expired he must do so while the senate is here to receive his nominees, sometime during the next few weeks.

Still Serving

The two expiring commissioners are L. J. Seyberth of Eau Claire and A. W. Schorger of Madison. They know they will be replaced. They Shaded Areas of the Map Indicate the target areas in the north where the conservation department says the deer population is extremely heavy. It is into these lightly hunted regions the department hopes to have gunners go to thin out the herd. The deer are in these regions at the rate of 15 to 30 animals per square mile. The season opens in these areas next Saturday.

Taxes Concern Game Division

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison — The conservation department, one of the state's largest land-owners, is becoming worried about property tax liability even as are some of the more modest land-holders of the state.

The legislature has required that the department pay local school taxes on its hunting and fishing grounds, being bought in ever increasing acreages.

The department has announced that it will ask the fall legislative session to freeze the valuations of such properties at the figures in effect when the department bought the lands.

Early State Deer Season Will Open Next Saturday

3 Target Regions Listed North Of Highway 8 Which Contain 15 to 30 Animals Per Square Mile

BY JAY REED
Post-Crescent Outdoor Editor
The first half of Wisconsin's 1959 deer season moves underway next Saturday in that area north of Highway 8. It signals the start of 15 days in which the whitetail deer will be the principal target of over 300,000 gunners.

Chances are good that these shooters will kill in the neighborhood of 100,000 deer.

The season opens in remaining areas of the state one week later, Nov. 21.

This most complex of all Wisconsin deer hunting seasons jumps off to an early start in the north primarily because conservation department game managers hope to pull hunters into the bush country which, under ordinary conditions, receives little or no hunting pressure.

Controlled Shooting

It is a step into an era of controlled shooting in which the department will attempt to attract gunners into areas where the deer population is considered too large or where the herd is creating excessive damage. By liberalizing rules in one management section and tightening them in another, the department hopes to control hunter activities to meet the need of the state's deer herd.

In lining up next Saturday's early season, the department pinpoints three target areas in the far north which it claims have high deer populations. Game managers place the figure at about 15 to 30 animals per square mile.

11 Counties

(These target areas are outlined on a map accompanying this article.)

The areas, which comprise nearly 5,000 square miles, are located in portions of 11 counties. At least two industrial firms in the target areas are distributing maps free of charge to encourage hunters to use their forests. Maps are available from the Goodman Lumber division, Calumet-Hecla company, at Goodman, Wis., and from the Consolidated Water Power and Paper company, Rhinelander. Maps for the Nicolet national forest can be obtained from the U. S. Forest service at Rhinelander.

Spike Bucks

Next week's early season will permit the shooting of spike bucks or better only, with the party permit system in effect. There is one area in Vilas and Oneida counties in which the permit system will not be legal and hunters should check the regulations closely to see that they don't stray into the area if they intend to shoot a party deer.

Under the party permit system any group of four or more hunters may kill one additional deer of either sex if they have purchased the $5 permit prior to opening day.

IF YOU SHOOT A BIRD AND IT GOES DOWN OUT OF SIGHT, STAND STILL AND LISTEN FOR THE THRASHING OF THE LEAVES

Grouse Hunting Tip

If you have no dog in the grouse shoot, and a shot bird goes down out of sight, stand still and listen for its thrashing in the leaves. This will give a sign which is to be followed up very lightly lest the crippled bird run off.

King to Sponsor Merchandise Shoot

King — A merchandise shoot will be all day Sunday at the King Conservation club.

Shooters can begin at 9 a.m. and shoot at night under new lights installed this summer. Refreshments will be available at the grounds.

Mrs. E. D. Schaefer

Catholic Ceremony Unites Pair

United in a double ring ceremony at 10 a.m. today at Holy Cross Catholic church, Kaukauna, were Miss Jane Ruth Hardy and Eugene D. Schaefer. The Rev. Andrew Quella celebrated the nuptial mass. Parents of the young couple are Mr. and Mrs. Eugene T. Hardy, 1618 Florence street, Kaukauna, and Mr. and Mrs. William R. Schaefer, 317 W. 11th street, Kaukauna.

Miss Constance Hardy, Kaukauna, attended her sister as maid of honor. Bridal aids were Miss Alice Platten, Appleton, and Miss Nancy King, Kaukauna, the bridegroom's niece, who was a miniature bride.

Mark Biese, Kaukauna, was best man and Eugene King, Kaukauna, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, was groomsmen. Gordon Weyers, Kaukauna, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, and Robert DeCoster, Kaukauna, ushered.

A noon dinner was served at the VFW hall in Kaukauna which will also be the setting for the reception and dance this evening. The young couple will live at 201 E. Division street, Kaukauna, when they return from a northern Wisconsin wedding trip.

The newlyweds are both graduates of Kaukauna High school. Mrs. Schaefer is employed at the Western Condensing company in Appleton. Her husband works at the Kaukauna Tire company.

Rev. Grill Officiates At Nuptials

Miss Nancy L. Urban, 1206 1/2 N. Lawe street, became the bride of Donald V. Sternhagen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Sternhagen, 1500 W. Rogers avenue, during a 10 a.m. ceremony today at St. Mary Catholic church.

Officiating at the double ring rites and nuptial mass was the Rev. A. M. Grill. The bridegroom's sister, Miss Marilyn Sternhagen, Appleton, was honor attendant. Mrs. Gene Linzmeier, Appleton, was bridesmaid and another sister of the bridegroom, Cynthia Sternhagen, was a junior aid.

Best man for his cousin was Richard Sternhagen, Appleton, and Gene Linzmeier was groomsmen. Ushering duties were performed by Lowell Koehnke and the bridegroom's cousin, Ralph H. Ujazzowski, both of Appleton.

Stroebe's Island Inn is the setting for a noon family dinner and an afternoon reception. After a northern Wisconsin wedding trip, the couple will live at 1206 1/2 N. Lawe street.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Urban, 906 N. Lawe street, is a graduate of Kaukauna High school and is employed by the Aid Association for Lutherans. Her husband, a graduate of Appleton High school, works at the Institute of Paper Chemistry.

Rites Unite Appleton Couple

Vows were exchanged at 10 a.m. today at St. Theresa Catholic church by Miss Sandra Gene Krolow, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Fred Paul Krolow, and James Robert Laux, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Laux, route 3, Appleton.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her uncle, Leonard M. Williams. The Rev. Edward Wagner performed the double ring ceremony.

Honor attendant was Miss Sandra Hawley, and Miss Susan Laux, sister of the bridegroom, was bridesmaid. Clarence Williamson, brother-in-law of the bride, was best man. Tom DeDecker was groomsmen. Lawrence Turkow and James Decks, the bridegroom's brothers-in-law, ushered.

A noon dinner was served at Hammen's restaurant in Little Chute. A reception and dance will be held this evening at the Rainbow Gardens ballroom.

Mrs. Laux graduated from Appleton High school and is employed at the F. W. Woolworth company. Her husband works at the Park 'n' Market.

Kimberly Pair Say Promises

The Rev. John De Wild officiated at the double ring nuptial ceremony at 9 a.m. today at St. Paul Catholic church, Combined Locks, uniting Miss Alice Mae Vander Heyden and Clement J. Dickrell, 421 S. John street, Kimberly. Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Vander Heyden, 107 Lom street, Kimberly.

Coreen Janssen, Little Chute, was the honor attendant.

Mrs. C. J. Dickrell

Best man for Dickrell was Carl Sanders, Little Chute. A breakfast was served after the ceremony at the bride's home. A dinner and reception will be held this afternoon at the May-Nor restaurant.

The young people will reside at 421 S. John street, Kimberly, when they return from a wedding trip to southern Wisconsin, Illinois and Michigan.

Mrs. Dickrell is a graduate of St. John Catholic High school, Little Chute, and is employed at Kimberly-Clark corporation, Kimberly. Her husband works at the Consolidated Badger Co-op, Appleton.

Youth Moderator Uses Music in Work With Teenagers

BY CAROL RICHARDSON

A smiling, young Capuchin priest, who is spiritual moderator of the St. Joseph Catholic Youth organization, believes that music is the best way to win the confidence of youth and get close to them.

The Rev. Lyle Peyovich, O.F.M. Cap has studied music since he was a sixth grader in Chicago. His interest has continued in piano, violin, organ, singing, mandolin and accordion and today he plays and practices for his own enjoyment as well as for the young people of his parish.

"I studied violin with a Russian, Eugenie Fichtenohova, who received her training in Prague, Czechoslovakia," he explained. "She lived with my family, otherwise I never would have been able to afford her instruction," the priest added.

Father Lyle, as he is called, has written musical compositions - several for the piano and some violin numbers, including a Spanish dance. An a cappella mass for three male voices which he wrote will be published soon. "The mass has no gloria, so it will be sung during the penitential seasons - advent or lent," Father Lyle explained.

Modern classical music, especially Debussy, is the musician's favorite. "You can recognize his influence, can't you?" he asked after he finished an impromptu performance of one of his own compositions for the piano.

Plays For CYO

A favorite at CYO dances and gatherings, Father Lyle often plays the piano while the young people gather around and sing. "They like rock 'n' roll though," he added, "and it is good rhythmic dance music."

The priest was transferred to St. Joseph in June from Milwaukee, where he served St. Francis parish. He also taught music part-time at St. Lawrence seminary, Mount Calvary. "I like Appleton a lot," he said, "but I miss the variety of concerts in Milwaukee. He is always seen at CYO events, the informal gatherings each Wednesday and the monthly Friday dances, and also is adviser to the Young Ladies' sodality. He plans to lead the sodality group in singing and Christmas carols.

Sings For Students

Father Lyle practices in the large CYO room two or three times a week and also sings occasionally for his third and fourth grade students to whom he teaches religion.

"I like to make up my own arrangements of numbers," the priest added and demonstrated his talent by an original interpretation of Gershwin's "Summertime." He is an admirer of the late Eddy Duchin's style and his theme song, "The Very Thought of You" is one of his favorites.

Capuchin priests can be sent almost anywhere in the world he explained. "I like parish work very much," Father Lyle said, "but I would like it anywhere there are young people."

Honor Group

Miss Catherine Knapstein, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Knapstein, 1036 W. Summer street, was initiated into Sigma Epsilon Sorority at recent ceremonies at the University of Wisconsin, Madison. She is a student at the Menasha Extension center.

Night Maternity Nurses Spread Comfort Among Dads, Grandparents-to-be

BY DOROTHY ROE
AP Women's Editor

If you measure success by the amount of comfort, happiness and general good a person spreads around in a lifetime, then the nurses on the maternity floor of any hospital must be among the world's most successful people. Especially the night nurses.

For some reason unknown except to the powers above, most babies seem to start getting ready for birth in the middle of the night. And it is in the long hours between midnight and dawn that hospital waiting rooms become most populated with chain-smoking young fathers and anxious grandparents, waiting out the hours until a new baby makes his earthly debut.

At this time the calm, smiling night nurse seems to take on the character of an angel as she pats a distracted first-time father on the shoulder and says: "Your wife is doing beautifully — the doctor wanted you to know it won't be long now."

And she acquires a real halo when she finally appears to announce:

"You have a beautiful little son. And you may see your wife as soon as she comes back to the room."

At such times about-to-be grandparents sit on the sidelines, and have time to observe. It's a strange and wonderful experience to await the birth of a first grandchild and remember, perhaps, the birth of his mother, seemingly such a few short years ago. It's hard to realize that the baby you once saw for the first time in another hospital and another time now is big enough to have a baby of her own.

Calls Office

You get a call at your office one evening and your daughter says, "Mom, I guess you know more about these things than I do, but I think little Christopher-and-or-Anne is about ready to start. Maybe you'd better come over — it would be nice."

You arrive at your daughter's apartment and confirm her report. You help her pack a bag and say yes, you'll see that Charley gets some dinner. With daughter, son-in-law and bag you taxi to the hospital, see her to her room, meet her doctor and obey the nurse's request:

"Will you step outside a moment, please?"

Back in the room, there's final discussion about the baby's name, ended abruptly when the young parents remember that they still don't know whether it's a son or a daughter. There's clock-watching and pulse-counting and there are instructions to the almost-father to please remember to send out the laundry and pay the cleaning woman. Nurses appear at intervals with the unvarying remark:

"Will you step outside a moment, please?"

Then there's the uncertain moment when your daughter, looking very young and scared, is wheeled off for her big adventure.

Grandfather-to-be joins the party in the waiting room, and is more nervous than his son-in-law; if such is possible. And as the hours drag on, the jolly nurse in the white cap takes on an increasing resemblance to a heavenly figure with wings.

Tired Fathers

The night finally ends. The announcement finally comes. A bleary-eyed young father wrings the hand of a tired but smiling doctor and shouts: "Wonderful! Wonderful! Wonderful! A boy! Wonderful! Thank you, doctor! Wonderful!"

Grandpa and grandma can't get in on this act. But they can look through the nursery window at a small pink-and-white bundle miraculously perfect down to the last tiny fingernail, and they can solemnly agree:

"He's the most beautiful baby I ever saw!"

The Annual Women's membership tea of the YMCA was held Monday evening in the women's lounge. After a program new and old members became acquainted with each other and the Y's activities over

Girl Pays Her Own Hotel Bill

BY EMILY POST

Dear Mrs. Post: The other day several of the students here at college got into a discussion pertaining to weekend visits. We couldn't come to a definite answer and therefore would like your help. The situation is this: A young man invites a girl to be his guest at college for a weekend. The girl is from another city and will need a place to stay. The young man would like to make arrangements for her to stay at the local hotel since there is no available room for her in the girl's dormitory. Does he pay the hotel bill? Also, does he pay for her transportation to, and from the college?

Answer: She pays her own traveling expenses to and from the college and also her own hotel bill. If a group of boys together take several rooms at the hotel for their girl friends and the girls share these rooms, the boys may quite properly divide the expense among themselves. But it is not correct for one boy alone to pay one girl's hotel bill.

Polite to Rise

Dear Mrs. Post: My boy friend invited me to go to a football game with him last Saturday at his college. When the Alma Mater was played my boy friend naturally rose. I remained seated. I have been wondering ever since whether or not I should have gotten up too in courtesy to him. Will you please advise me as I will soon be going to another game and I want to do the right thing.

Answer: As you are not a student of the college, it was not necessary for you to rise, but it would have been more polite for you to have done so.

Groom Toasts Bride

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it in good taste for the bridegroom to propose a toast to his bride at the wedding reception? I had in mind saying something like the following—"To my lovely wife."

Answer: After the formal toast to the bride and groom, you can certainly propose the toast you wish to your bride.

Mrs. Post offers readers leaflets on a variety of subjects concerning etiquette. If you would like to have her leaflet E-8, entitled, "Today's Typical Wedding," send 10 cents in coin to Dept. E. P., care of this newspaper, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19 N. Y.

Parents Responsible For Home Accidents

Accidents today are the greatest of all crippers and even killers of children—and yet nine out of ten such accidents need never happen. Responsibility for this situation falls largely upon parents who shower love and affection upon their children but who fail to take adequate precautions to prevent accidents from striking down their youngsters.

This is the contention of Dr. George W. Starbuck, chairman of the Committee on Accident Prevention of the American Academy of Pediatrics. He points out that a nationwide survey conducted by the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare estimates that nearly 16,500,000 children under 15 years of age suffer accidental injuries each year, with between 40,000 and 50,000 of these permanently injured by accidents that could have been avoided.

Remove Hazards

To reduce this dreadful toll, pediatricians nearly a decade ago launched a concerted drive to remove hazards to children. The campaign included such precautions as low-lead or leadless paints for toys and nursery furniture, elimination of the use of flammable fabrics in children's clothing, new designs in refrigerators so that children cannot lock themselves in.

"Through these efforts thousands of lives have already been saved," Dr. Starbuck emphasizes. "But we have made all too little progress in eliminating the greatest of all causes of childhood accidents: the fatalistic and utterly mistaken belief among parents that accidents are bound to happen and that they can't do much to prevent them."

Surveys have shown that 39 per cent of all injuries to children are the result of falls; 29 per cent are reported caused by blows; still another 12 per cent involve piercing injuries. If parents took the precaution to use safety belts and safety gates, kept closet doors closed and heavy objects well out of the reach of children, scissors and other sharp-edged instruments under lock and key, a large percentage of these accidents would be avoided, says Dr. Starbuck.

There are simply safety measures such as keeping poisons and medicines, pins, buttons and other small objects out of the reach of very young children as well as turning pot handles so that toddlers can't grasp them. Similarly, electrical appliances — which are deadly threats to little children — should be arranged so that children cannot get at them. All of these moves, in Dr. Starbuck's view, would save the lives of many thousands of very young children who are killed each year by accidents that occurred because someone failed to take these and similar "obvious" precautions.

Every time a parent fails to remove a hazard or to teach a child to recognize and avoid danger, he is inviting an accident, he notes. It is essential that parents learn how to prevent accidents, set a good example, and teach safety to their children. Parents who teach and enforce sensible precautions against injury can rest assured that when their children go out into the world of schools, streets, playgrounds, beaches and swimming pools, they carry with them the ingrained habits of safety that will protect them.

Is this all mere theory? "Not at all," state Dr. Starbuck. "Time and again we pediatricians have found that parents who fail to teach their children how to protect themselves are the ones whose youngsters turn up most frequently, bloody and in pain, in our offices and our hospital emergency rooms."

Your Problems

Mother's Pushing, Digging Up Blind Dates Irritates Daughter

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN: I went steady with a boy two years. He was of a different religion and three years older.

On my seventeenth birthday my father promised me a college education if I would break up with Wally. I agreed.

To be honest, I'm happy I'm not going steady because I had been missing a lot of good times. I used to think I'd die if I didn't see Wally every night. Now I know I can live without him.

The trouble is my mother is so happy I'm not going steady that she's fixing me up with anyone and everyone. She has arranged blind dates with guys she has never even seen. I've drawn some real spooks. I never know what will appear at the door and I'm sick of it.

She says it's good for a girl's personality to go with all sorts of fellows. I am fed up. Please help me. — Victim

Dear Victim: Tell your mother you appreciate what she's trying to do but no future commitments, please.

Nothing is so unattractive (and damaging) as a mother who is pushing her daughter socially. I hope Mom will lay off.

DEAR ANN: Although we had to get married four years ago because I was pregnant, we made a good start and are happy. His parents are wonderful to me and his brother is a peach. The trouble is his sister Amy, who is 30 and unmarried.

When I told him we had to marry in a hurry his major concern was "How will I tell Amy?" (He never even mentioned his folks.)

Whenever we plan a party he automatically includes Amy. On Sunday when we go to his folks for dinner he sits with his arm around Amy and doesn't know I'm alive. When I complain he says I'm insecure and don't understand sister-brother devotion because I never had any brothers. Please tell me how to handle this. I feel as if I'm on thin ice. — Disturbed

Dear Disturbed: When you can't beat 'em, you join 'em. You'll never break up this combination without doing irreparable damage to yourself. So be sweet to Amy, build her up, include her willingly, and tell your husband he has a great sister.

The friendly approach will build bridges instead of fences. You'll probably wind up genuinely liking Amy when she reacts favorably to your kindness.

DEAR ANN: I feel stupid asking this question because I should probably know the answer, but I don't.

My wife passed away two months ago. She was only 33.

Great Northern Paper Dollar Sales Up 7.5 Per Cent Oct. 4

Bangor, Maine — Great Northern Paper company's 7.5 per cent increase in dollar sales in the 40 weeks ended Oct. 4 was partly due to a rise in specialty paper sales. M. C. McDonald, president, reported.

Net sales for the period for the newsprint producer were $42,788,397, up from $39,804,483 in the 40 weeks ended Oct. 5, 1958. Net income rose to $1,082,985, or $1.04 a common share, from $326,348, or eight cents a common share, a year earlier.

Tonnage sales for the period were up 5.3 per cent, said McDonald, but sales of specialty papers — which sell at higher prices than newsprint — accounted for 20 per cent of the tonnage, compared with 15 per cent in the like 1958 period.

Hussey Named To 'Who's Who'

David Hussey, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Hussey, 1009 W. Spencer street, has been named to "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities." He is a senior at Wisconsin State college, La Crosse, and is active in the Newman club, L-club, Campus council and the college dance group.

I took off my wedding band a few days after the funeral and it is still in my drawer.

A few days ago my wife's sister took me to the side after church and said, "You could have waited at least until Mary's body was cold before you started to shop around for a new wife." I was shocked and asked her what she meant by that. She said I should still be wearing my wedding band, and she was hurt to see that I had taken it off so soon.

Is she right? Please tell me. I am — Very Disturbed

Dear Disturbed: She was wrong and it was cruel of her to attack you in such a manner.

A widower is not married. You were right to put your wedding ring in the drawer.

Are you going steady? Making marriage plans? If so, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Before You Marry — Is It Love Or Sex?" enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

(Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Plan Fund Drive For UNICEF

One hundred volunteers from Appleton church youth groups will turn out Sunday for a 1-day fund raising drive for UNICEF, the United Nations International Children's Emergency fund.

The door-to-door solicitation amounted to $330 last year. This is the second year the drive is being held.

Money from the fund is used to aid poor and diseased children and train midwives. Eighty nations participating in the program provide $2 for every $1 received from the fund.

Family Diary

I never go away in the afternoon without leaving the telephone number where the children can reach me written on the blackboard in the back hall.

Though I'm usually home when they get there — sometimes I think it is as important for the older children to find me there as it is for the younger ones — once in a while I plan for Sally to go home after school with Betty Stalker, so I don't have to come rushing home from an afternoon party or meeting before it is over.

I made this sort of arrangement last Thursday when I was invited to Mrs. Earnest

Thrip's home as a guest of the Socrates Study club. The SSC is composed mostly of older women and is a real brain trust. At each meeting a member delivers a paper on some important topic and a discussion follows. Frankly, I was not only flattered to be asked but was genuinely interested in the topic: "The Role of Modern Woman in a Changing Society."

The paper which was prepared by a Mrs. Sandringham, an imposing-looking woman with a large chin and piercing black eyes, took almost an hour to read and reached some startling conclusions that women should not only be represented at conferences at the "summit" but also be at man's side when he hurtles to outer space in a rocket.

When she sat down a few seconds of silence followed, then Mrs. Thrip cleared her throat. "A marvelous paper, Nettie, but do you think that all of today's women..." The jangle of the telephone at the other end of the room interrupted her sentence. "It's for you, Mrs. Griffith," she said, turning toward me, and I was grateful for her tone of concern. "It sounds like a little boy. I do hope that nothing's wrong."

Answers Phone

With an apologetic glance around me and a lump of apprehension in my throat I picked up the phone, but any thoughts of trouble were promptly dispelled by Tommy's loud and indignant voice. "Hey! Mom! When are you coming home?"

"Not for a while," I said. "Why?"

"Because you forgot to make Booter's birthday cake, that's why! And you promised!"

"Mama can't leave just now," I hushed. "Can't Libby make it? Or Mitzi?"

Study Club Learns About Woman's Role

By Jeannette Griffith

"They're not here. Neither one of 'em. And besides, you said you'd make it, because when a dog gets to be as old as Booter..."

"All right," I sighed. "I'll be there in a few minutes."

A dozen pairs of interested eyes faced me as I turned away from the phone. There was no use to dissemble for Tommy's voice had penetrated the entire room and the Socrates Study Club hadn't missed a word.

"I'm terribly sorry I can't wait for the discussion," I began, "but you see it is Booter's birthday and though he is a dog, I did promise to make him a cake — I don't mean I promised him, I promised the children — because he is going to be 77 and that's getting to be rather a ripe old age for a dog..." My sentence dwindled away to nothing. How silly it all sounded... and what would the SSC think of me?

Fox Terrier, 98

Then Mrs. Thrip was speaking and I couldn't believe my ears. "Why, I think that's just darling of you!" she cried. "Our Princess, she was the dearest little fox terrier, lived to be 98 — that's 14 dog years you know — and I'm sick to think I never once made a cake for her."

Mrs. Sandringham was next to get into the spirit of the thing. "Let's see," she said, "Our dog's 9, which makes him 63. In two more months he'll be eligible for social security."

After that remark all the ladies began talking at once and, with the sneaking suspicion that the role of woman hasn't changed quite as much as some might think, I hurried home to make Booter his cake.

U. S. S. Mohican, so this only made her pour on coal. Soon a boat's crew of Capt. Gordon's countrymen were calling on him. "Found her to be the ship Erie of New York," says the firmly indited entry in the Mohican's log, "without papers or any person claiming to be captain, and with 893 slaves on board, having a mixed crew of Spaniards, Americans and Frenchmen."

Gordon had obviously followed an old slave's dodge: He had thrown the ship's papers overboard at the last minute to confuse the issue of jurisdiction. At his trial he denied that he had been in command. His mates swore that a certain Manuel had been in charge. But several seamen testified that it had been Gordon who had given the orders when the Erie put to sea. Worst of all, Gordon's timing was unfortunate. At home the Battle of Bull Run had already been fought, and the atmosphere had so changed that the United States was moving toward a reciprocal search treaty with Britain. Within a few months the treaty was signed, and within two years slaving in Rebecca-type operations would be finished.

Thus it happened that Nathaniel Gordon became the first Yankee skipper ever hanged for slaving, though the federal statute which equated slaving and piracy had already been in force for 42 years.

Car Crashes Into Guard Posts on Road Overpass

Chilton — Glenmore A. See-hauer, 49, New Holstein, lost control of his car on the Highway 57 overpass, three-fourths of a mile north of Kiel at 6:10 p.m. Thursday.

The car struck several guard posts then spun around and skidded across the highway, crashing into the railing on the other side. He was not injured.

Ernst W. Moehr, 80, route 2, Brillion, escaped injury Thursday when he lost control of his car on a curve on Highway 114, a half mile south of Brillion. According to the county police, the car left the pavement and traveled 120 feet through the ditch before striking a utility pole.

Construction Firm Fined for Four Violations

Chilton — The Sell Brothers Construction company, Stockbridge, was convicted of four traffic violations in justice court Friday.

Appearing before Justice Wilber Winch as compar representative was Harold Sell, 225 W. Seymour street, Appleton. He paid fines of $10 each for operating a motor vehicle without a horn and a stop light and license overloads on two trucks.

Ralph A. Markwardt, 36, Sheboygan, was fined $10 for speeding.

Wiley Will Give Good Democrat $1 Anytime

Milwaukee — W isconsin's senior Republican senator Alexander Wiley is willing to give a dollar "to any Democrat" but he contends he has never given anything to a state-wide drive for the party.

Walter Klopp, Milwaukee 4th ward Democratic chairman, exhibited a receipt book showed that Wiley gave a dollar to the Wisconsin "dollar for Democrats" campaign when the senator was a speaker at a state hairdresser convention here Oct. 12.

Klopp said a service bar attendant picked up the dollar from Wiley's table and then later gave him a receipt.

Wiley replied: "I was there to make a speech, not to give a dollar. I am perfectly willing to contribute a dollar to any good Democrat."

Peristrophe Colorful Plant, Belongs to Acanthus Family

By Katherine B. Walker

Peristrophe (P. angustifolia aureo-variegata) is a colorful plant, having long, pointed - oval leaves of fresh green with yellow irregularly in the centers, and bright yellow stems.

It belongs to the Acanthus family, which includes other interesting foliage plants such as hypoestes, fittonia, and aphelandra, with which you are no doubt familiar. This is a rather new plant on the market, and it is my opinion that there are still many things we don't know about it.

For example, the few references to this plant that I have been able to find all refer to it as being a good vine or hanging basket plant. On this information, I placed my plant, when it arrived some months ago, in a wall-bracket planter. To date, peristrophe is more than 16 inches high, and shows no sign of growing anywhere but straight up! Of course, it may suddenly begin to trail, and meanwhile I am enjoying the fact that it is a bushy, well-branched, decorative plant.

Orchid Blooms

Another point on which I disagree with what has been written previously about peristrophe; its flowers are said to be a pink or rose color, but those on my plant have consistently been a soft lavender, almost orchid color.

One thing that no one has mentioned is the fact that this plant requires an abundance of water; keep the soil moist all the time. In addition, provide a warm, partially-shaded location, and rich, humusy garden soil. Cuttings root readily in any damp medium, and since the plant grows quite rapidly, it will provide extra plants for your

Housemother Loans State Civil War Medal

Congressional Valor Award First Round -In Historians' Search for Descendants

A Civil war Congressional Medal of Honor won by a Wisconsin soldier has been found in Appleton and has been loaned to the State Historical society for display during the Civil war centennial commemoration.

Mrs. Abbie Pond, a housemother at Delta Tau Delta fraternity house at Lawrence college, presented the medal to William Alerfer, of the state society, and John Hunter, of the Wisconsin Civil War Centennial commission, Friday.

She was the daughter-in-law of James Burton Pond, the Markesan Journal editor who became a lieutenant in the Third Wisconsin cavalry. Hit By Quantrill

On Oct. 6, 1863, Lt. Pond was commanding two companies of Third Wisconsin cavalry reinforcing a company of the Second Kansas Colored volunteers at Baxter Springs, Kan.

As the troops were eating dinner the notorious bandit-raider Quantrill, with some 600 men, overran the camp. Lt. Pond, caught within the Confederate ranks, rejoined his swiftly regrouping men and as Quantrill pulled back to form up a second onslaught, Lt. Pond, exposed between the lines, manned and fired a howitzer three times to break up the attack.

The Pond family of Alto, between Oshkosh and Fond du Lac, has a unique place in the state's Civil war history. Of the seven boys, three, James, Homer and George, saw service and two, James and George, won the Congressional Medal of Honor.

Mrs. G. E. Buchanan, 1005 E. College avenue, is a niece of both winners. She said her Uncle George continued as an Indian fighter after the Civil war and his family was raised in Kansas.

First Fruit

The James Pond medal of honor is the first fruit of a search being conducted by the state society and the Civil war centennial commission.

Another medal of honor is the granddaughter of William J. Knight, the engineer who drove the locomotive "General" stolen from the Confederates on April 12, 1862, at Big Shanty, Ga., by the Andrews Raiders, the first recipients of the highest award for valor provided by the nation.

One other Medal of Honor is known to be in Wisconsin. It is held by Albert S. Capron of Milwaukee, nephew of Horace Capron of the Eighth Illinois cavalry, who won his medal for gallantry at Chickahomny and Ashland, Va., in June, 1862.

others loaned to the historical society will be displayed at the society's museum at Madison and will be part of a contemplated Civil war exhibition to tour the state in the Historymobile.

The story of the Congressional Medal of Honor and the exploits of Pond, Knight and Capron will be the subject of a series of articles to appear in a few days.

POST CRESCENT News of the Twin Cities Menasha - Neenah

Winnebago County Shows Fast Growth

Real Estate, Personal Property
Values for '59 Over 1958 Figures

Oshkosh — Another year of accelerated growth in Winnebago county, making it the fastest growing county in a 20-county area, was evidenced by a 3.20 per cent rise over the 1958 total of real estate. Much of the growth has been in the Neenah-Menasha area, according to Donald J. Sherman, supervisor of assessments.

The $14,234,800 real estate rise was accompanied by a rise in personal property of $3,832,420 or 5.68 per cent over 1958.

Also included in the higher assessed valuation was a rise in the value of cattle, although the number of cattle in the county dropped 862 from 1958. The value of cattle increased $926,470, or 12.39 per cent.

Cattle Increase
Some of the cattle increase is attributable to a better job of grading individual herds by assessors, Sherman stated. Values set on cattle included milking cows $210, purebred milking cows $235, heifers $140, non-milkers $165, calves $85, bulls $195, beef cattle $210, beef four months to a year $90, sheep $15 and sows $55.

Swine numbers went up 666 in the county and averaged $40.72 this year for the county as a whole, Sherman said. Sheep went down from 1,910 in 1958 to 1,764, this year. Total value of sheep is $26,480, Sherman said.

Greater Valuation
A greater rise in township valuation comes from the greater cattle prices, Sherman said. It shows the townships will be paying a greater share of taxes this year, or $28,194 per $100,000 raised in the county budget for 1960, compared to $27,943 in 1958.

"Boats are a very difficult item to justify a figure in assessing," Sherman said. Sherman explained a new method of licensing craft through the conservation commission which makes it easier for a city to get the value of a boat wintered in another port.

Assessors in the winter port appraise the craft and send values back to the city where the boat's owner lives, he explained.

Menasha Police Report 2 Mishaps
Menasha — City police today reported two minor traffic accidents which occurred Friday.

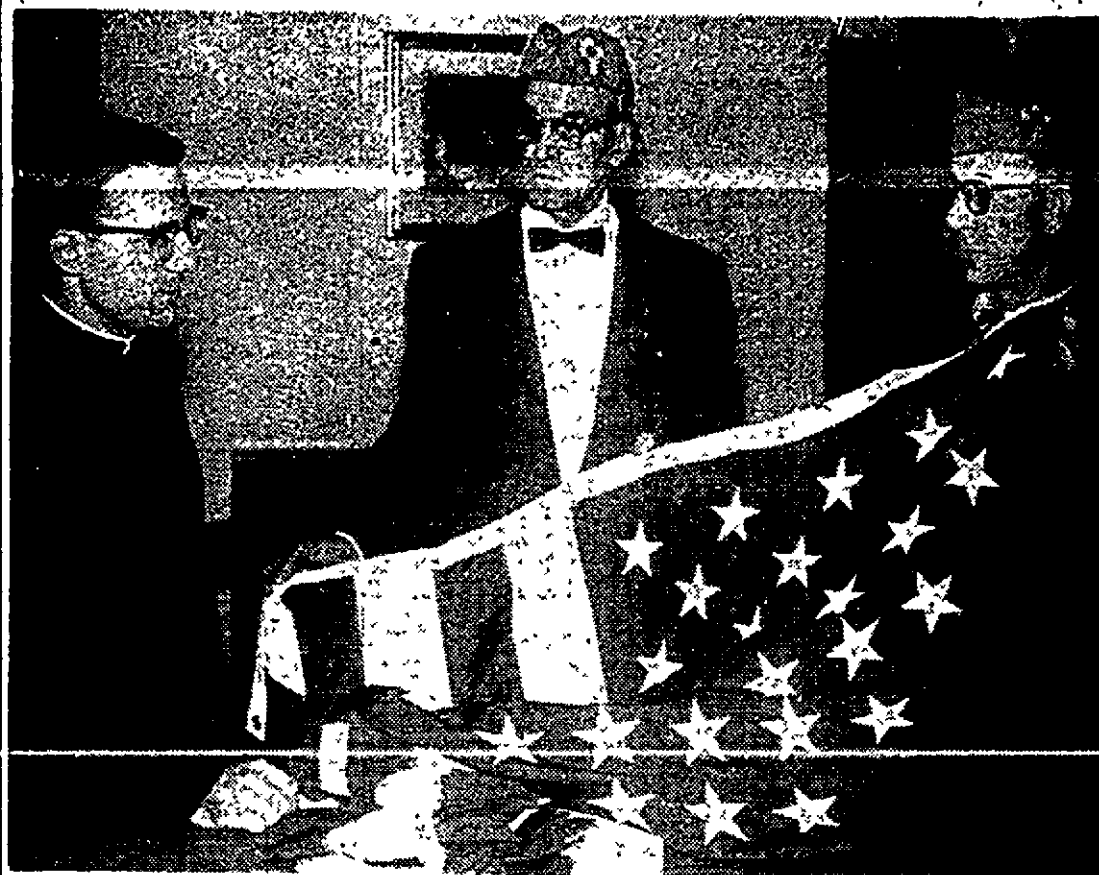

At 1:30 p.m., a school bus operated by Thomas Downman 28, Oshkosh, turned into the right lane of Third street at Racine street and struck the front end of a car driven by Barry S. Burdick, 25, Evanston, Ill.

A pickup truck driven by August A. Pomeranka, 73, 646 Tayco street, struck the rear of a parked car owned by Herbert Wilz, 308 Racine street, at the corner of Third and Racine street. The car was pushed five feet by the impact.

Shooting, Hunting Forbidden in City, Menasha Chief Says
Menasha — Hunting or shooting of firearms within the city limits are prohibited by city ordinance, Police Chief Peter Clark reminded today.

The chief said the department has been receiving complaints of hunting, especially in the area west of the George A. Whiting Paper company mill on River street and near the old dumping ground north of Third street.

Bullets, which can travel up to a mile, are dangerous to persons in homes and factories near the shooting places. Clark asks parents to make sure their children go outside the city in safe areas to hunt and shoot.

St. Mary High School, Menasha, was the first school in the area to receive a 50-star United States flag. Accepting the flag on behalf of the school was the Rev. Donald Stoegebauer, administrator. Representing the Catholic War Veterans, who donated the flag, were Hugo Pawer, center, past first vice commander of the Wisconsin department and past commander of the CWV's Lt. A. H. Schmidt post, and Joe Dickmann, post commander.

Huelsbeck Honored as One of Two Outstanding Test Pilots of Year

Menasha — Gerald Huelsbeck, 31, former Menashaan killed Oct. 21 while testing a new navy jet airplane, was honored as one of the two outstanding American test pilots of the year for his work for the navy.

Huelsbeck, a civilian employee of McDonnell Aircraft company of St. Louis, had been on a year's assignment to Edwards Air Force base to help the navy develop inclement weather flying techniques and to try to attain a world's altitude record for powered aircraft. The base is at Muroc Lake, Calif.

1946 MHS Graduate
The plane spun into the ground, and Huelsbeck ejected himself seconds before the impact. His parachute failed to open enough to break his fall, causing the fatal injury. Previous reports indicated he was killed when the plane crashed into a mountain. The crash scene was near Mt. Pinos, Calif.

Huelsbeck was a 1946 graduate of Menasha High school. His father, Walter, and brother, Robert, both are of Menasha. Another brother, William, lives at Okauchee. His wife and two children will live at Waukesha.

He was in the navy six years, assigned part of the time to the "Red Rippers" fighter squadron aboard the carrier USS Oriskany. Organized in 1927, it was the navy's second-oldest aviation unit.

Church Hears Guest Pastor
Bible Institute Professor to Talk At Calvary Baptist
Neenah — Speaking at the Calvary Baptist church Sunday will be the Rev. G. Coleman Luck, a member of the faculty of Moody Bible Institute at Chicago. He will speak at 9:30 a.m., 11 a.m., 6 p.m. and 7:30 p.m.

After receiving his training at Dallas Theological seminary where he earned a master's and a doctor's degree in theology, Dr. Luck served as pastor, Evangelist and Indian mission worker with the Southern Presbyterian church in Oklahoma.

He teaches comparative religions and Bible subjects, frequently teaches over the institute's radio station, WMBI, and isook review editor of the "Moody Monthly," a Christian family magazine. He contributes to a variety of Christian publications and has written six books published by Moody press.

Dr. Luck also finds time to serve as a part-time instructor for Moody correspondence school and conducts a community Bible class held weekly at Joliet, Ill.

Rain Halts Gillingham Sewer Work

New Sidewalk Construction to be Finished in Week

Neenah — Rainy weather has seriously slowed down operation in the sewer and water main installation program into the Gillingham farm plat on the west side of New Highway 41, Wayne G. Bryan, public works director, reported.

The project has been underway for two months and is about 10 to 15 per cent completed.

Sidewalk construction is expected to be completed about Nov. 15, weather permitting. Curb and gutter work needs only a little stretch on Main street to be poured soon before this work is completed.

During the year Hansen street and Church street received bituminous concrete surfacing and a binder course applied to Nicolet boulevard. A warm, dry day is needed to complete that work, he added.

Street Construction
Street construction work completed includes Surrey lane and court, Sterling and Greenfield street extensions and the extension of Baldwin street north of Bridgewood drive to Winneconne avenue.

The Wisconsin Telephone company this week had about 76 per cent of its conduit installation on S. Commercial street completed and the Wisconsin Michigan Power company has almost completed the installation of a gas main on Byrd and Marathon streets.

Bryan also reported a fourth refuse truck, a machine formerly used at Wauwatosa, has been received and put into service.

Relief Corps Plans for Party

Winneconne — Plans were made for a Christmas party at the meeting of the Azro Young Relief corps Thursday in the home of Mrs. Lydia Henry. Mrs. Ray Quigley was chairman of the lunch committee.

Mrs. R. A. Diestler and Mrs. Ben Zimmerman were elected co-chairmen for the Christmas party at the meeting of the Lutheran Aid society Wednesday in the church parlors. Hostesses were the Mmes. Alfred Anderson, Ivan Anderson, Henry Falk, Gordon Angell, Earl Kunde and August Schmeling.

American Legion and American Legion auxiliary will serve its annual harvest dinner from 5 to 8:30 p.m. today at the Central school cafeteria.

Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Bockin are area co-chairmen for the Theda Clark hospital fund raising drive. They will be accompanied by 10 representatives for the kickoff dinner at Fellowship hall, First Presbyterian church, Neenah, at 6:30 p.m. Monday.

4-H Speaker To Discuss Sweden Trip
Oshkosh Rotarians To Hear Wieckert, Outagamie Member
Oshkosh — David Wieckert, former Outagamie 4-H Club member, will discuss his experiences in Sweden at the Oshkosh Rotary club meeting Monday noon at the Raulf hotel.

Wieckert, who in 1952 was selected under the international farm youth exchange program, visited in Sweden about six months. Later he received a Fulbright scholarship which took him to New Zealand for research in dairy husbandry.

He received his bachelor and masters degrees in dairy husbandry at the University of Wisconsin and now is enrolled in the graduate school. He served as Oconto county 4-H club agent for a brief term.

Among the organizations which sponsor the international farm youth exchange program is the Wisconsin 4-H foundation. Winnebago county recently was named No. 1 in the 12-county northeastern Wisconsin district in per member contributions to the foundation.

Housing Dairy Herds Topic of Farm Meeting
Oshkosh — The second in a short course series of four meetings on farm buildings will be at 8 p.m. Tuesday at the Omro High school agricultural room. The discussion subject will be housing the dairy herd when it grows beyond the conventional barn.

Ed Bruns, extension farm building specialist from the university's college of agriculture, will assist. Thirty milk cows comprise the average sized herd today, but most barns were built to hold 20 milk cows plus heifers and other stock. Converting other farm buildings and the popular pole shed is being used by many to house dry cows and young stock.

Remaining meetings will be Dec. 1 at the Neenah club in Neenah and one in Winneconne at a date in December still to be set.

Mrs. Gaertner Heads Junior Red Cross
Menasha — Mrs. Milton Gaertner was named chairman of the Menasha Junior Red Cross at the board of directors meeting Thursday. Mrs. Allan Loehndorf will be assistant chairman.

The annual Junior Red Cross drive will begin Nov. 15 in Menasha public and parochial schools. Miss Carole Quella will attend the Red Cross executive secretaries' conference in Milwaukee Monday and Tuesday. In her absence, Mrs. William Wiegand and Mrs. George MacKellie will be in charge of the chapter office, in the Post-office building.

Mrs. Carl Nebel will handle emergency home service in Miss Quella's absence. The Red Cross office will be closed Wednesday, Veterans' day.

The next Red Cross board meeting will be at 7 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 2, in Elisha D. Smith public library.

William Platt, blood program chairman, said the next visit of the bloodmobile will be Dec. 10 and 11 at First Congregational church.

Airport Takes In $31,100 During Year

Revenues Exceed Expenses by More Than $5,000

Oshkosh — Airport revenues for the 12-month period up to Oct. 1 exceeded expenditures by more than $5,000, according to Supv. Alvin Staffeld, Neenah, aviation committee chairman.

Revenues amounted to $31,157 while the expenses Staffeld added up to $26,060. Kimberly - Clark corporation paid the county $9,901 on the rental of its hangar at the airport while North Central Airlines turned over to the county $7,327 in rental of space in the airport terminal and landing fees.

Marathon corporation, which has paid the complete cost of its hangar, paid the county $480 for the land rental and the United States government sent the county a $1 check for the "Omni" station, a sound beam navigation system it has at the airport.

Other revenues included $2,565 for advertising space rental in the terminal building, $350 from City Cab of Oshkosh for rental of a small space in the terminal and $2,952 from a car rental service for rent of terminal space.

Kiekhafer corporation paid the county $450 on a hangar which it had used at the airport. S. J. Wittman contributed $1,200 for hangar rental and Basler Flight service paid $4,089 for rental of various hangars and buildings. Another $1,850 was taken in as rent from the restaurant in the terminal building.

The expenses went for the manager's salary, utility expenses, equipment purchases, repairs and for snowplowing, grass mowing and other operations.

Open Slate Nov. 15 Against
Don Bosco at Appleton Gym

Menasha — Last year's St. Mary Zephyr basketball team lost three of its first four games (all to Milwaukee schools) and then proceeded to win 20 straight and didn't taste defeat until the championship game of the state Catholic tournament.

Coach Ralph McClone, beginning his 10th season, is making sure the Zephyrs don't get off to that kind of a start this fall and he has several factors in his favor.

The current squad includes seven lettermen, including the second through the sixth ranking scorers of a year ago.

However, one returnee, Norm Brown, will be out indefinitely with a broken collar bone received in the final football game.

Other Veterans
Other veterans are Pete Vanderhyden, Dean Schreiner, Jim Rueckl and Jerry Laemmrich, who started all or most of the games last year, plus Bill Becker and Mike Herliche. Up from the jayvees are Bob Rueckl, Mike Kiefer, Tony Rechner, Jim Koerner and Paul Meier.

Gary Batley, the team's top scorer and an all-state selection, graduated as did Mike DuFrane, Ed Lotzer and Jim Bayer.

Another thing in the Zephyrs' favor is that only Becker and Brown were on the football squad and the other boys were able to get a jump on their grid-playing teammates.

Last year's team had five or six gridgers and they failed to shake the effects of the grid game until later in the season.

Better Height
Then too, McClone started last year's season minus key lettermen from the preceding campaign and with boys up from the jayvees, sophomores or those with little varsity experience.

Another thing which doesn't make McClone unhappy is the better height of the present contingent. Kiefer is 6-5, and Koerner, Bob Rueckl and Laemmrich are all a couple of inches above 6 feet. All four are juniors.

Patent Schedule
The Zephyrs will have to be ready for their early season schedule is no picnic. They open a week from tomorrow against Milwaukee Don Bosco at the Appleton St. Joseph gym.

A strong Wisconsin Rapids Assumption team will be here Nov. 20 and on Nov. 25 the Menashans go to Milwaukee to battle North division, the runnerup at last year's WIAA state tournament. Two days later they meet Milwaukee St. Benedict at the St. Joseph gym and league play opens Dec. 3 at Green Bay Pre-montre.

St. John Takes On Oshkosh, New London

Guns for Second,
Third Victories
In Home Contests

Neenah — St. John Holy Name will continue its busy basketball schedule with two weekend games against formidable foes.

The Menashans, who lost to Subway of Appleton and defeated Brillion in their first two starts, entertain New London at 8 p.m. tonight and play host to the Loft of Oshkosh at 7:30 p.m. Sunday.

New London placed high in the northern division of the BABA last year and lost to St. John in the interdivision battle for second place.

Players on the Loft roster include Al Harke and Ken VanderVelden, former Kimbly High school stars, John Stark, 6-7, who played with Appleton High school and Lawrence college, and Bob Keomaster, who earned letters at Murray State college in Kentucky.

Coach Ken Barker's St. John team will be without the services of centers Bob Kersten and Tom Martin, who are expected to be kept out several weeks with sprained ankles received in the Brillion game.

One of the highlights in his pro career came in 1953 when he intercepted a pass and ran 67 yards for a touchdown against the Packers. In '51 in one of his brief offensive appearances he caught a pass and ran 12 yards to score.

Kindt played high school football at Washington High school in Milwaukee under Coach Lisle Blackburn. He entered Wisconsin in 1943 and immediately became a regular.

Kindt was the right halfback on the 1946 Badger team which had 4-5 but which defeated Ohio State 20-7, and until the 12-3 win a couple of weeks ago that was the most recent UW victory over the Buckeyes.

Kindt was born July 2, 1925, is 6-1, and during his pro career weighed about 205 pounds. A versatile athlete, he won medals in hurdles and shot put at the Drake relays and also gained several AAU swimming awards.

Invitations also have been extended to athletic directors from the new Xavier High school at Appleton and Lourdes High school at Oshkosh.

Menasha — Verna Osiewalski collected a 206 game and 529 series to dominate scoring in the first section of the Fox Valley Women's Bowling league Thursday night at the Mid-Town alleys.

Other honor scores included Florence Kassel 200, Ruth Becker 192-501, Marie Miller 502 and Rose Mignon 191. Grove Clothing (17-10) tops the 8-team circuit by a full game.

Honors in the league's second section Thursday night went to Lois Klassen, who came up with a 198 singleton. Jo Ann Eisch recorded a 195. Wettengel's Bar is in the lead with an 18-9 record with a 1-game margin.

Winneconne Boaters To Select Officers
Winneconne — Officers will be nominated and elected at the meeting of the Winneconne Boat club at 8 p.m. Tuesday at the village hall.

Nominations will be made from the floor instead of by committee as in the past. A time and site for the club's annual Christmas party also will be set.

The entertainment committee will be composed of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Thull and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Frerks, Jr.

Macs Battle Reedsville In EW Fray

Menasha — The Menasha Macs begin defense of their Eastern Wisconsin Amateur league crown with an 8 p.m. Sunday contest against Reedsville at the Butte des Morts gym.

The Menashans, who are starting their fourth year in the circuit, defeated Kiel in a playoff for the title and won the loop tournament as well last year.

In their only non-league warmup, the Macs turned back Clintonville. Squad members include Pete Burghardt, Dick Rohe, Joe Kosior, Jerry Smith, Greg Ropella and "Doc" Kramer of last year's team; "Skip" Schuerer and Ray Swiecichowski, former St. John players; Bob Hodkiewicz of last year's Menasha high school team and Bob Felix, who played with the Mac baseball team this season.

Catholic League Coaches to Pick All-Star Squads

Menasha — Coaches of the Fox Valley Catholic conference will select their first and second all-league football teams at the circuit's annual fall meeting Monday night at Pennington High school at De Pere.

The possibility of recognizing tennis as a conference sport will be discussed since five of the six schools have net squads. Tennis coaches have been invited to the dinner meeting.

Invitations also have been extended to athletic directors from the new Xavier High school at Appleton and Lourdes High school at Oshkosh.

Menasha-Bulldog Game Cancelled

The Menasha at New London High school Mid-Eastern conference football game slated to be played at New London this afternoon has been cancelled because of the poor playing conditions.

It will not be re-scheduled.

Interest on '59 Work at Old 4 Per Cent

Attorney Rules That Policy Won't Change Until Jan. 1

Interest charges on special assessments for sanitary sewer, water main, sidewalks and street improvements completed this year will be determined by the city's old interest-charging policy, City Atty. Jury has ruled.

Jury gave his ruling during a discussion of whether the old rate of 4 per cent, and the method of charging backwards and forward in the first year, would apply to construction of sewer and water laterals on three streets.

The streets are E. Shaw, Carpenter to Fairview; Fairview court; and Lee court extended 80.52 feet west to the end of the street.

Jan. 1 Date

Councilmen, after it was explained that work probably won't be done by the city until next year and Jan. 1 is the deadline date for completion, voted to require the new interest policy for the project.

The new policy will require payment of 6 per cent interest on the unpaid balance during the last four years of the 5-year installment plan for payment of special assessments.

Property owners have 20 days in which to get their own contractor or the city will advertise for bids and select a contractor to do the work.

Kuehn Visits Green Bay

Making Soundings On Possibilities For Governorship

Post-Crescent News Service
Green Bay — Philip Kuehn, former Republican state chairman who is regarded as a leading candidate for governor in 1960, visited Green Bay Friday "to talk to some people and to make some soundings."

Kuehn said he hoped to have made a decision on whether he will run for governor right after the Christmas holiday. If he were a candidate, he would want to swing into an intensive campaign as soon as possible, Kuehn said.

"I believe the job facing the Republicans this year is a full-time job. It isn't something you could do (campaigning) on a part time basis," he said.

Decision on Own
Kuehn said if he decides to run for governor, his decision would not be affected by there being other Republican candidates.

"If I decide to go, I'll go. Of course, I would abide by the endorsement rules of the Republican convention," he said.

Kuehn said he was in Green Bay on a business trip, "but obviously while I am here I am going to talk to some people and make some soundings."

Kuehn was Republican state chairman between 1955 and 1958 and was Milwaukee county party chairman for two. He resigned as state chairman because of the demands of a family cold storage business. Kuehn said today that

INSTITUTE GETS $30,000 GIFT

A gift of $30,000 to the Institute of Paper Chemistry for establishing a modern electron microscopy and diffraction laboratory has been announced by John G. Strange, president of the institute.

The gift was made by the Louis Calder foundation. Electron microscopy studies are made to determine the structure of papermaking fiber, modification of that structure, and the use of filler and coating particles. Results of the studies are used in forest genetics and papermaking operations.

The new instrument provided by the Calder gift will permit diffraction studies not possible with present equipment. The present electron microscope was installed almost 20 years ago.

Plane Slips Runway; No Injuries Reported

New York — A North-east airlines 4-engine plane inbound from Boston slipped off a runway today as it was coming to a stop at Laguardia airport. Nobody was injured.

The turboprop Viscount came to a halt in a grass area to the right of the instrument runway.

A bus was dispatched to take the passengers to the airport terminal.

The runway was closed to other aircraft immediately and another runway was put into service.

changes within the firm were now being made which would make it possible for him to run for governor.

Lutheran Welfare chaplaincy corps are also slated to speak. The Rev. H. Werner Neumann, chaplain at the Green Bay reformatory, will preach at First English Lutheran church. The Rev. E. T. Boe, chaplain in Eau Claire, will speak at Our Savior's Lutheran church. The Rev. Finn Hansen, chaplain in Madison, will talk at Zion Lutheran church.

The special observance is being held to provide a better understanding of services rendered by the society in the social welfare field.

Last year the society's social worker staff handled 33 cases in the Appleton area. It served six children in adoptive homes and aided nine unmarried mothers. It found temporary foster care for children from broken homes and provided casework therapy to disturbed children placed in agency institutions.

The Lutheran Welfare society served 917 children and 214 unwed mothers last year in Wisconsin. The chaplaincy program reached 46,000 people.

Teaches Disarmament Class

Don't Fret About Nuclear Warhead, But Delivery Missile, Jesuit Says

Omaha, Neb. — We've got the cart before the horse in our disarmament wrangling with the Soviets, says the teacher of what may be the only college course in disarmament in the nation.

There's no use arguing about nuclear warheads, contends the Rev. Edward A. Conway, S.J. We ought to be worrying about the missiles that would deliver them.

"We have let technology get too far ahead of our political accomplishment," says Father Conway, gesturing with a fistful of technical papers in the Jesuit quarters of Creighton University.

Out Of Hand
"Before long it will be too late to control the missiles. The thing is getting farther out of hand every minute."

The crux of the problem is inspection, the thing on which America has been standing firm. But Father Conway gives it a different twist.

There are three phases to a weapon: production, possession and use. So far as atomic bombs are concerned, argues the Jesuit priest, "you can't inspect for possession any more.

Secret Supplies
"We would always have the nagging fear they had secreted a sufficient number of nuclear weapons to back up any blackmail."

But you can inspect missiles and their launching facilities, and that's the practical place to try to exercise control, he believes.

"It doesn't matter so much how many atomic bombs you have so long as you don't have the delivery systems."

Fear Prompts War
At 57, white-haired Father Conway is a specialist but not an optimist about disarmament. If anything will prompt it in these days of the cold war, he says, it is fear — fear and the feeling of each side they are about equal in their weapon development.

"I have a feeling now no serious attempt at disarmament will be made until both sides get what they need; a real stalemate with both satisfied they are not the underdog."

Milwaukee — born Father Conway started out as a student of Papal disarmament teachings, originated a 1943 "Pattern for Peace" declaration backed by 147 Protestant, Catholic and Jewish leaders and later lectured for the state department on the Dumbarton Oaks proposals which led to the formation of the United Nations.

Condensing Co. Drying Plant Now Underway
An $80,000 drying plant for making edible whey now is under construction at the Western Condensing company plant, 935 E. John street.
The 4-story addition will connect two present buildings, and will measure about 40 feet by 100 feet. It will be constructed of masonry and steel.
Company officials say the steel work will be put in place beginning next week. All the steel has been stockpiled and fabricated so the steel strike will not interfere.
Edible whey is used mostly as a baker's ingredient in goods for human consumption.
Construction should be completed sometime in May. P. G. Miron company is the general contractor.

No Opium in the Elevator

This is another of a series of articles from Harry Golden's latest bestseller, "For 2 Cents Plain."

After the first few weeks behind the desk of the Hotel Markwell, I wouldn't have changed jobs with the editor of The New York Times. Managing that hundred-room house on Forty-ninth street, 30 yards west of Broadway, was like reading the 1001 Nights with such narrators as Stendhal, Zola, Boccaccio, Dopey Benny, Samuel Liebowitz, Broadway Rose, Rabelais, Jenny-the - Factory, and Damon Runyon.

Across the street was Jacob's Beach, where the men of the fight game congregated. To my right was the Paradise night club, with Paul Whitman, Johnny Hauser, Goldie, Jack Teagarden, and Ramona. To my left was the Forest theater, where one of my former guests, Maude O'Dell, was playing Sister Bessie in the original Tobacco Road.

I remember giving a room to Jack Johnson, the heavyweight champion. He was working in a flea circus on West Forty-second street and he needed a night's lodging. I took him in, beret and all. Many small hotels became headquarters for specific trades and occupations; the burlesque girls go to one place, the carnival men to another, and so forth. The Markwell had inherited a fraternity all its own—the ocean-liner card sharks. Occasionally two of them would be off with their beautiful luggage only to return two hours later with the announcement: "The purser tipped us off—no one with real dough on this trip."

Acted Quickly
When the card sharks returned from an ocean voyage, they went straight to the typewriter in the lobby, even before shedding their overcoats. They wrote a letter and sent it over to the post office marked "registered mail, return receipt requested." The letter was to the American Express company as follows: "Gentlemen: On an ocean voyage on the S.S. so-and-so on such and such dates, the undersigned won the following money orders in a series of poker games from the following people."

This was for the card shark's protection. Usually the first thing the "score" (sucker) did when he hit dry land was to send a telegram to the American Express company that he had lost his book of money orders and would they please stop payment on same and send him duplicates. But like most gamblers, prostitutes, and touts, the sea-going card sharks were excellent hotel guests—no noise, no drinking, and no practice of their profession on the premises.

Opium Smoking Banned
I leaned backward to keep the hotel straight. I established a direct line of communi-

Kaukauna High Frosh Cage
Squad Cut to 24 Players

Kaukauna—After one week of practice the Kaukauna High school freshmen cage squad has been cut from 30 to 24 players with additional cuts expected prior to the start of the campaign, according to David Hash, coach.

Hash expects to carry about 20 boys on the squad. The team will play nine conference games four of which will be at home. Seven teams are represented in the loop. Tentative plans are being made for a non-league tilt with New London.

Kaukauna will open the campaign Dec. 3 at Madison of Appleton and will end the campaign at Kimberly on Feb. 25. As in other years the majority of games are scheduled for Thursday afternoons.

Team Members

Boys still carried on the squad are Pat Courtney, Robert Dix, Gerry Ebben, Gene Fahrbach, Tom Hiestand, Steve Hilgenberg, Howard Jansen, Jim Johnson, Jerry Kobussen, Mike Kobussen and Carl Kroes.

Others are Thurston Lambie, David Lamers, Ed Lutnow, Joe Mayer, Tom Otte, Dick Promer, Tony Schlude, Don Straus, Mickey Thompson, Dan Van Dyke, Harry Wheelock and John Whitman. The majority of the boys were members of grade school teams last year.

ZaSu's Mother Had Own Idea About Name

Dennis Weaver Set for Will Rogers Role in George Burns February Spec

BY JINGO
There's a whole new world of possible names open to prospective parents if they name their offspring the way ZaSu Pitt's mother did.
To name her new-born daughter, ZaSu's mom simply combined the names of ZaSu's two grandmothers, Eliza and Susan, like this: ElizaSusan. Then she plucked out the combined middle syllables, zasu, and that was that.
It ought to be fun to try it, anyway.

Jingo Lingo: Dennis Weaver is just about set to play Will Rogers on George Burns' February TV special, "A Night at the Palace." Good choice, huh? ... NBC-TV is waiving a fat check at Guy Lombardo for rights to produce a musical special based on the handclapper's career ... Desi and Lucy have signed Robert Loggia to play one of the Italian immigrants in their projected drama based on the controversial Sacco-Vanzetti case.
There are big ones galore booked for the weekend and Monday. Samples: "I, Don Quixote," the CBS-TV "Show of the Month" Monday night ... "Murder and the Android" on NBC-TV Sunday night ... "The Mar-

New TV Series Stars Bowman

'Miami Undercover' Part in Character For Long-Time Sleuth

BY BOB THOMAS

Hollywood — There was Lee Bowman on the floor, conked by a gangster's sap and with a switchblade aimed at his gut. A shot was fired by an obliging blonde and Lee lived on to solve another case.

This bit of Bowman drama took place at Desilu studios, where Lee is filming "Miami Undercover," a new TV series for United Artists. It came easily to him, and with good reason.

During his film career, Bowman played a columnist-sleuth in "The Walls Came Tumbling Down." He starred on radio in an Erle Stanley Gardner series, Jonathan Kegg. And for 90 weeks he played Ellery Queen on live TV.

So his new guise as a Florida crime hunter (with sidekick Rocky Graziano) is a natural result of his long battle against the underworld. The series brings Lee back to California after a 6-year exile to the greener pastures of New York and Connecticut.

"I left somewhat as an accident," he explained. "The picture business had been slowing down and I was doing some hour dramatic shows on TV. I went back to New York to do an Ellery Queen. The star, Richard Hart, died on a Tuesday and I did the show on Thursday. I had no idea of getting into a live series, but they offered it to me, and I stayed."

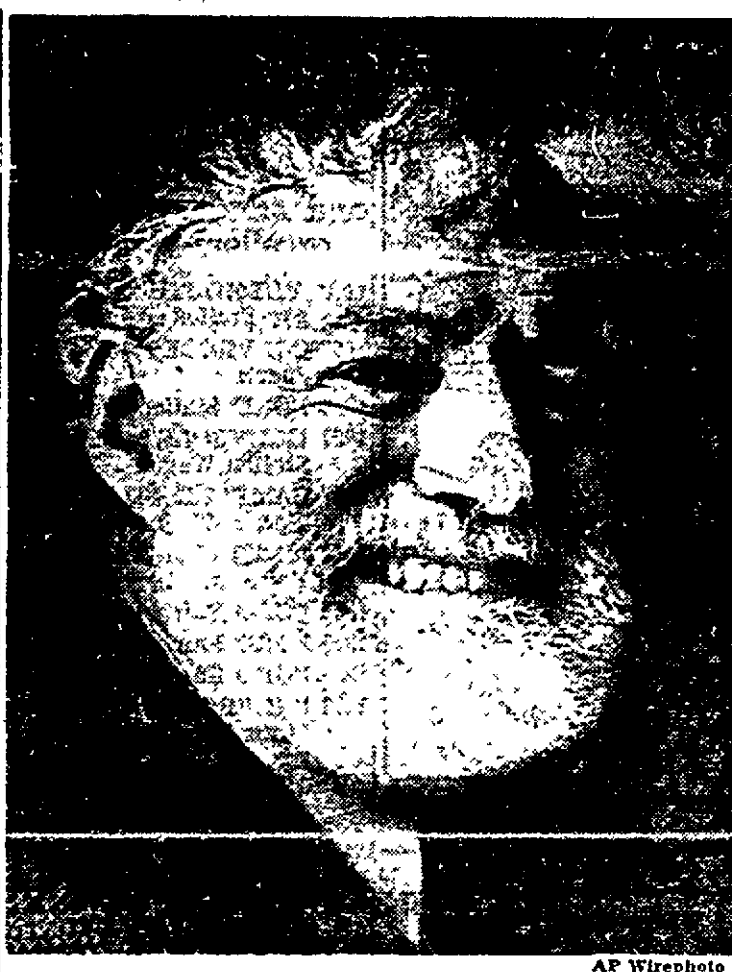

Lee moved his family to New Canaan, Conn., and he admits that his departure was considered rather treasonous in some local circles.
"Back in those days — six years ago — you were supposed to be either a movie actor or a television actor," he recalled. "If you went into a TV show, you were considered something of a traitor. About the only ones doing TV in those days were Ralph Bellamy, Robert Montgomery and myself."

After his seasons as Ellery, Lee stayed on to do Broadway shows, front TV spectaculars for an auto concern, conduct a real estate insurance firm with his brother, act as director of a commercial film concern, perform on a weekly drama over NBC radio and appear on the panel show, "Masquerade Party."

Drill Stolen
The theft of a drill, valued at $45 new, was reported to Appleton police by Ray Sanders, 318 McKinley street, Little Chute. It was taken from his car while it was parked in a city parking lot, he said.

Wife of Former Kimberly-Clark Chairman Dies

Funeral Services Set Monday for Mrs. C. G. Parker
Menasha — Mrs. Martha Fraser Parker, 57, wife of Co-la G. Parker, former president and chairman of the board of Kimberly-Clark corporation, died Friday afternoon after a short illness.

Mrs. Parker, the former Martha Fraser, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred N.Y. was born Jan. 19, 1902 in New York. She married Mr. Parker Nov. 14, 1925.

She was a member of the Colonial Dames of America, and the Women's National Republican club. She was an active member and supporter of the John Birch society, the American Friends Service committee, the Neenah-Menasha Visiting Nurse association, the League of Women Voters of Menasha and Neenah, the Appleton King's Daughters, the Tuesday club and other civic organizations.

Her husband, also a past president of the American Paper and Pulp association and the National Association of Manufacturers, was to have left next week for Geneva, Switzerland, as a representative of the United States to the General Agreement on Trades and Tariffs conference.

Burial in East
Funeral services will be held at First Presbyterian church at 2 p.m. Monday and at the Westbury Friends meeting, Westbury, Long Island, N.Y., at 2 p.m. Wednesday. Burial will be private at Westbury. A memorial is being established at Theda Clark Memorial hospital.

In addition to her husband, she is survived by a daughter, Mrs. William H. Brooks, Trail, Ore.; two sons, Summer Parker, Memphis, Tenn., and Valentine Fraser Parker, Huntington, N.Y., a stepdaughter, Mrs. George W. Pearson, Trail, Ore., and 8 grandchildren.
